We Talk Fast, Go Slowly.
A New Train Idea.
Germany Has Brains.
N. M. Schenck's Rule.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"The United States talks fast and flies slowly. England flies fast and talks slowly."

BRITAIN HOLDS all the speed records that have any real meaning—the airplane record, 357 miles per hour; the automobile record, 246 miles; the motorboat record of over 100 miles, and motorcycle record of over 150 miles. And they have achieved these records in "hard times." The British manage to do what they have to do.

INCIDENTALLY, THE British are far ahead of us in the construction of airplane and other engines. They have developed horsepower in their engines by methods concerning which we know nothing. For instance, they took an 850-horsepower engine, weighing 1,540 pounds, and got out of it 1,900 horsepower, the engine weighing less than one pound per horsepower.

Perhaps our big oil companies could tell us what the British put in their engines to get such horsepower and make them go so fast.

THIS YEAR the Italians, British and French will compete in the Schneider Cup race for the world's speed records. Uncle Sam, who invented the airplane, will be absent. What's the matter with us? Are we getting too old, fat and rich?

THE IMPORTANT news today, that will be important 1,000 years hence, is the news of a really fast railroad train, designed by Prof. Wiesinger, in Switzerland.

Its coaches, made of light aluminum, will weigh only three tons each and, driven by airplane propellers, will travel 223 miles an hour.

Such a train would take passengers from New York to San Francisco in 14 hours. You will get such trains in the United States eventually.

THE GERMANS yesterday, with 60,000 looking on, launched their first so-called "pocket" cruiser, a fighting ship with which Germans demonstrate their superior engineering and military intelligence.

It is a small vessel, much smaller than some that France and the United States are building, but far superior in every way. A great number of small compartments enable the new cruiser, named Deutschland, to resist the discharge of several torpedoes or mines.

Six 11-inch guns, mounted in armored triple turrets, have a range of 17 miles. This German ship could destroy every existing 10,000-ton cruiser, including United States and French cruisers, with no danger to herself.

With Diesel engines, the new German fighting unit, more brilliantly designed than any other in the world, has a cruising range of 10,000 miles.

We have the money, and France won the victory, but Germany seems to have the brains, in this case, most important of all.

NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK, president of Loew's, Incorporated, which operates hundreds of theaters here and abroad, and of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, one of the two greatest producing companies, announces a policy that deserves the strongest public approval.

Mr. Schenck will not permit either of the companies to exhibit or make any films inspired by advertising interests. He says:

"Screened advertising is a menace to the motion picture industry and should be barred by all first-class theaters."

Good advertising is admirable, but disguised advertising or open advertising on the screen is indefensible.

THE "ELGIN marbles," pride of Great Britain, most precious possession of the British Museum, really belong to Greece. Lord Elgin, for whom they are named, when British ambassador to Constantinople, long ago, packed up the marbles in Athens and carried them to Britain, a kind of piracy then justified. Lord Byron called down on him "the curse of Minerva," but it didn't seem to work.

NOW THE BRITISH consider returning the Elgin marbles to their old place on the Acropolis at Athens, to prove how honest the British are.

It is a noble impulse. On the other hand, for one person who would see the marbles at Athens, a hundred will see them in the British Museum. And returning stolen goods of that sort might be a dangerous precedent.

WE GET MANY of our new ideas from Europe, and here is one. Germany now numbers towns and cities, to save mistakes and time. Dortmund, for instance, is number 32. The new system will keep letters, freight and express from going astray.

TEETH TAKEN FROM COAL POLICE BILL

Musmanno Opens Fight on Own Measure as Senate Committee Makes Changes

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 20.—An emasculated Musmanno coal and iron police bill came out of the Senate's Judiciary General Committee today.

As amended it would give the coal and iron police their previous rights and powers of arrest, leave undefined their responsibility, limit their scope in no way, and deny even the restrictions of the present Mansfield act.

M. A. Musmanno, sponsor of the measure, said he would fight the amendments when the bill is returned to the House.

MUSMANNO TO FIGHT

Musmanno announced that he would go on the radio in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and elsewhere in the state to broadcast how the senators had emasculated the measure.

The committee also cut out parts of the repeal bill, companion to the guard bill, to make it conform to the main measure.

Where Musmanno's bill would limit the guards to the property of the companies they serve, the Senate amendment would provide that:

"Every property guard appointed hereunder shall have the power of a policeman in cities of the first class and of constables insofar as the property and rights of employers and employes are concerned."

JOKER IN BILL

The joker in the amendment centers about the words "the rights of employers and employes." The courts have not defined when and where these rights begin or end.

The provision in the Musmanno measure for arrest by warrant was eliminated, as was the paragraph which would make the guard responsible for such violations.

A third important provision deleted was that which laid responsibility of the policemen upon the employing company instead of the state.

The committee did leave in the paragraph which would provide that the guards wear badges.

The emasculation of the measure was made by the senators who killed the fair rate bills and all other liberal legislation that has come before it.

Ralph Barton, Calling 'New York Crazy, U. S. Mad,' Ends Own Life

RALPH BARTON

Famous Cartoonist 'Broke,' Fearful Of Insanity

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Ralph Barton, noted caricaturist and restless spirit of the art world, today committed suicide in his penthouse apartment—because he was "broke," in ill health and feared insanity.

Once he had said:

"New York is a crazy city and America is a madhouse. Americans are crazy. I find I am crazy, too. We're all crazy."

Barton, born in Kansas City 39 years ago, left several notes. One explained his fear of insanity, declaring he had a heart attack six months ago, had been advised to stop work, but couldn't, because he needed the money.

Barton was a well-known contributor to American magazines. He recently left Liberty to go with The New Yorker. He also was the dramatic editor of Life, author of several books, and illustrated the volume "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

The caricaturist was divorced by his fourth wife in Paris exactly one month ago today. The divorce was obtained by the former Germaine Tailleferre, Parisian artist, whom Barton married in 1926.

He once was mentioned as a prospective husband of Miss Ruth Kresge, heiress of the 5 and 10-cent store magnate. But yesterday Miss Kresge sailed for Europe.

He returned only recently from Paris. He went abroad a few years ago renouncing America because of what he termed "the hypocrisy of prohibition" in this country.

$1 LIQUOR FINE; CARD FAKED

After a prohibition agent admitted he gained entry to an Eagles Lodge with a membership card bearing a ficticious name, Judge R. M. Gibson dismissed the club steward with a $1 fine in Federal Court today.

Arthur Tentler, steward of Eagles Lodge No. 1881, of California, Pa., had pleaded guilty to sale and possession. The lodge was named as a co-defendant in the indictment.

George Arnold, steward of a place known as the F. O. E., 319 McKean street, Charleroi, was paroled a year for the sale and possession of liquor.

He said the decision was made to relieve the ship of excess weight which made the possibility of an Atlantic crossing dubious.

TAX BILLS FAIL, STATE FACES FUND CRISIS

Pinchot to Warn Legislators Measures Must Pass If Hospitals Are to Be Aided

HARRISBURG, May 20.—(AP.)—Defeat of the Williams bill to impose a tax of 8 mills on the gross receipts of buses last night in the House was represented by administration leaders as creating a serious financial situation for the state government.

Gov. Pinchot prepared to appear before the House today to inform that body that several important administration fiscal bills must be enacted if the state-aided hospitals and institutions are to be given appropriations.

Gov. Pinchot will point to the seriousness of the situation arising from the defeat of the Williams bill and the recommitment last night of the Sterling capital stock tax bill by which the state had hoped to preserve a biennial revenue of $5,000,000.

In all administration leaders estimated that failure to enact the Williams and Sterling measures and the Mathay bill might result in a loss to the state of a biennial revenue of $25,000,000 which has been counted upon as receipts in preparation of the budget.

The Mathay bill, which would impose an 8-mill tax on gross receipts of natural gas companies, is back in committee.

Postoffice 'Blaze' Only Heating Plant

Fire apparatus from all downtown engine houses, rushed to the Postoffice Building in Smithfield street early today after an alarm was sounded by persons who saw a pall of smoke which hung about the roof of the structure. Firemen found that the smoke was caused by the postoffice heating plant.

200 Shacks Go Up in Flames at Banksville Road Colony As Needy Look On

Because West End citizens said they begged, 300 homeless men watched two squads of police set fire to 300 shacks in the "Jungle," the haven of the unemployed and destitute along the Banksville road.

Within two hours the village, which has been home to the destitute for the past eight months, was blackened, smouldering and deserted.

The firing was supervised by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad police chief, Thomas (Raiding Tom) Cavanaugh. His railroad police were assisted by Lieut. John Casteel and a squad of West End police. They made short work of the little village built of boxes, discarded lumber, tin and cardboard.

The only casualties were four kittens. The mother, having left her litter for a few moments, returned to find flames enveloping the basket in which they were sleeping. She meowed plaintively, and police, unable to save the kittens, held the cat to prevent her from leaping into the fire.

Police visited the community five days ago, looked it over, and

BEAUTY FREE IN KILLING OF MATE

Youth vs. Age

Said the Judge: "Did you and your husband lead separate lives? If not, why did you always go dancing and neglect your home and your children?"

Said the Beauty: "There are nothing but constant rows, but I'll be —— if I'll stay home and sit in a corner reading. I am still young. Maybe when I'm his age I will do that."

By MICHAEL WILSON
International News Service.

NICE, France, May 20.—Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, former beauty contest winner of St. Louis, was acquitted at Aix-en-Provence today of charges of "murder with provocation" in connection with the fatol shooting of her husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theatrical magnate, in their luxurious apartment here six weeks ago.

The trial, which began only this morning, was one of the shortest murder actions in recent French criminal court history.

JUDGE STERN

Although Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's acquittal had generally been expected, the stern attitude of Judge Herwards at the opening of the trial gave rise to considerable speculation. The judge probed deeply into Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's relations with her husband before summoning witnesses, and accused her of being "flighty" and caring too much for "new dresses and dancing."

Announcement of the acquittal was greeted by a mild burst of cheering by persons in the courtroom, who included many American residents of the Riviera. There was little excitement, however.

The court announced that Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger would be set free tonight. She had been in jail for 42 days.

SOBS ON STAND

The former "queen of beauty" gave way to emotion while recounting how she fired the shots that ended her husband's life.

Stifling her emotion, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger indignantly denied the judge's inference that she had an admirer. The judge then asked:

"Then why did your husband accuse you? Why was he so jealous?"

To these questions, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger could only shake her head.

Last $6 Enters Clara Bow in Contest

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

CHAPTER III.

Poverty, sickness and unhappiness were the three specters that followed Clara Bow through her girlhood days. There were times when she scarcely had enough to eat. Her clothes were always shabby and finally, one day after she had been in the Brooklyn High School two years, she decided to take a secretarial course.

"I want to help make a living," she told her father. "I want the things that other girls have."

The Bows were then living in one room in a cousin's house.

Her father, who was born of good people, had neglected his opportunities for an education, but he was eager for Clara to continue her schooling.

"I only had $3 in my pocket when I married your mother," he told her, "and I have never been able to earn much since. I want you to educate yourself so you can do something worth while in the world. I tramped the streets of New York as a boy and I want something better for my daughter."

Clara finally agreed to wait two weeks before she took up her secretarial course. She told me one day when she had luncheon with me at the Paramount studios that she used to save every penny she could to go to the movies. She rouged her lips with red ribbon and tried to mimic every actress she saw.

"My mother," Clara said, "was very religious. She scolded me when I tried to act, but in the back of my mind always was the fear that one day I would go into the movies.

"I read in the motion picture magazine that a contest was being held right in Brooklyn. I showed the advertisement to my father.

"If you let me enter that contest," I told h[illegible]. "I will do

TOWN HALL SITE NOT INSPECTED, M'GOVERN CHARGES

HEARING CLOSES WITH SHORT DEFENSE

Attorneys Clash as Ex-Mayor Scans Minutes of Meeting; County's $8 Price Defended

No comprehensive study of the F. F. Nicola site, at Fifth and Ruskin avenues, was made by the County Commissioners before its selection for Allegheny County's new $6,000,000 Town Hall, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared today.

McGovern, who was named as one of the defendants in a suit in equity in which Schenley Farms and Oakland property owners seek an injunction to restrain the County Commissioners from completing the deal with Nicola, also is aligned with the complainants. Called for cross-examination, he asserted the Commissioners never gave any consideration to the site as to its adaptability or adequacy for Town Hall purposes.

ARGUMENTS TOMORROW

The hearing ended after County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock had been called to the stand as witnesses for the defense. Final arguments will be made tomorrow at 9:30 o'clock.

Both Armstrong and Babcock gave similar testimony. They denied McGovern's statement that no comprehensive study had ever been made of the Nicola site and declared they had conducted numerous hearings, in which 37 sites were advocated.

DEFENSE OPENS

The complainants rested with McGovern's testimony and R. L. McCallip, Fourth avenue realtor, was called as the first witness for the defense. McCallip testified it was his opinion the Nicola property was worth $8 a square foot, the price the county has agreed to pay. Under cross-examination it developed McCallip is one of the owners of the Chatham Land Company, which holds a valuable piece of property adjoining the site selected for the Town Hall.

EATON, LESHER CLASH

Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, chief counsel for the litigants, and County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher clashed when the minutes of the County Commissioners were brought to the courtroom for examination by Judge James R. Macfarlane. Attorney William A. Magee, former mayor, who has been prominent in Town Hall activities, began to examine the minutes when Lesher objected. Lesher said Magee was not a recognized member of counsel in the case. Attorney Eaton retorted heatedly:

"Mr. Magee is a reputable man and a member of the bar of high standing. He certainly ought to be allowed to examine the records of any public office."

Magee was given permission to examine the records by Judge Macfarlane who said:

"Mr. Eaton may have at his elbow anyone he sees fit."

Evidence relating to Town Hall requirements was halted by Judge Macfarlane, who said:

"This is not a matter of whether the property is worth $8 or $8.50 per square foot. My business is to determine whether the County Commissioners have used their discretion or acted without discretion. If they paid $10 for property only worth $2 they certainly abused their discretion. The question of choice of location is not for the court to decide."

Judge Macfarlane made his statement after the defense had introduced Edward F. Daume, of the Commonwealth Real Estate Company, and H. H. Hunter, president of the Samuel W. Black Company. Daume testified that the Nicola property was worth $10 a square foot and Hunter placed a valuation of $8 upon the property.

McGovern was the first witness when the hearing resumed this morning and was cross-examined by Attorney Eaton. He declared the Commissioners had never authorized any investigation of the proposed sites and had purchased the Nicola property without an appraisal. He said plans for a town hall were never drawn, a fact McGovern claimed prevented proper consideration of any of the sites proposed. He also testified the Duquesne Garden property was offered the commissioners at $4.50 per square foot before the final purchase agreement had been signed. The offer, the minutes revealed, was made on February 7. The final purchase agreement was signed on March 19.

CABARET MAN POSTS BOND

King, whose arrest was ordered Monday by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, surrendered to North Side police last night and was charged with violating the state dancing laws. Posting a $1,000 bond, King was released. He will be arraigned in the North Side Police Court Saturday morning.

That the Silver Slipper, and the Club Alabam in Wylie avenue, were operating, was revealed following raids Thursday morning by prohibition agents. The Silver Slipper had no dance permit, and the Club Alabam obtained one by trickery, according to Director Clark. The Club Alabam would remain closed as a cabaret, Clark said.

Joe Rubin, said to be proprietor of Club Alabam, was held for federal grand jury in $2,000 bond when arraigned before a United States commissioner today.

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP.)—The Chicago Tribune said today that Mayor Anton J. Cermak announced a police policy that eliminates looking for evidence of wine or beer making for home consumption. The Mayor is quoted as saying:

"I think that the police have sufficient work to do without snooping at the back doors of homes. I don't see why the police should be concerned with the small manufacture of wine or beer in the homes, which is intended for home consumption."

KIRKLAND MAY SHUN STAND

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 20.—(INS.)—Doubt as to whether Virgil Kirkland will testify in his own behalf in the second trial for the murder of his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, was voiced today by his attorneys, one of whom said:

"There is certain evidence which we want to get before the jury that may force us to place him on the stand, but if we can present it through others we probably will not use him."

It was indicated that the defense might subpena the wives of two of Kirkland's pals, Mrs. David Thompson and Mrs. Henry Shirk.

DAVIS SOUNDS WARNING TO COAL MEN

Industry Must Regulate Itself or Perish, He Tells Student Body at Indiana

INDIANA, Pa., May 20.—(AP.)—Regulation of production of bituminous coal was recommended today by Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, as a panacea for the present ills of the ebbing industry.

Davis blamed existing conditions on pursuit by the coal operators of a "law of the jungle"—may the best survive—policy in addressing the student body of the Indiana State Teachers' College here.

PROBLEM OF INDUSTRY

Saying prosperity for the industry "must come from within the industry itself," the Pennsylvania junior senator advocated an open discussion by operators of their troubles. He added:

"They should emerge from these parleys with a sound constructive program assuring a fair share of profit for the entire soft coal industry, providing their deliberations are based on the Golden Rule and common horse sense, instead of the 'Law of the Jungle' with its 'dog-eat-dog' ethics of competition."

He urged mergers of operating companies provided consolidation "offers the most practical solution" for the economic problems facing them. He continued:

"The need for a thorough housecleaning in the soft coal industry has been obvious to the general public for a long time and certainly should be apparent to the operators themselves now." Above all things, the industry urgently needs self-regulation of production."

FREE 2 IN FAKE STAMP TRIAL

Tony Lima, 27, and John Bondy, 40, of Johnstown, were acquitted today in Federal Court of possessing and using counterfeit whisky stamps. Their counsel declared no stamps were found in their possession and that it was a case of persecution by the Cambria County detectives, following the acquittal of Lima in 1928 on a homicide charge and two years later on an involuntary manslaughter charge in connection with the fatal shooting, on Halloween night, 1928, of George F. Cupp, a produce dealer, by a masquerader in Chinese costume.

Lima roomed with Bondy and the two were partners in the produce business.

Wilkins Arctic Sub Trip Praised by Stefansson At Farewell Dinner

NEW YORK, May 20.—(Universal.)—Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins' proposed Arctic submarine expedition was defended and praised at a farewell dinner in his honor by the City Club last night.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer, replied to the recent criticism of retired Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman. He quoted Admiral Rodman as saying that the expedition was foolhardy and hazardous and, if it does succeed it will be of no value to mankind. Stefansson said:

"He mentions the hazard from the 'Polar ice-cap.' There is no 'Polar ice-cap.' There is one in Greenland, but not at the Pole."

In concluding, he said:

Capt. Wilkins said that if they do 50 per cent of what they plan, he will consider the expedition a success. They have estimated the dangers and have made every preparation for them, he said.

Capt. Wilkins said that he will go to the Nautilus at New London, Conn., today. He plans to sail for Europe within two weeks, and the submarine is scheduled to leave next week.

The Citizens Committee will not act on its report until it has had time to check some of the financial figures of Price, Waterhouse & Co., which made the audit of the department for Controller, James M. Kerr.

Much work has been done in the matter of investigations, the inquiry requiring the sending of persons into several states to obtain information.

MURDER STORY TRAPS SUSPECT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—(AP.)—A policeman's fondness for detective story magazines may bring him a reward of $500 if Frank J. Moran, whom he arrested here yesterday, proves to be George H. Perry, known as the "marrying brakeman" of Eagle River, Wis.

Perry is wanted for the murder last July of Cora Belle Hackett at Lac Du Flambeau, Wis. She was one of the six women he had married.

Moran figured in an auto accident here recently and Police Inspector James Johnson went to Moran's office to get his version of it. Monday, Johnson, perusing a magazine, was attracted to a story of the murder of Cora Belle Hackett and a picture of her husband, Perry, who had disappeared.

The picture interested him. He noted facial peculiarities of Moran and Perry were similar. He telegraphed Wisconsin authorities. They asked that Perry be held.

Megan Lloyd George Guilty Of Being Like Father

LONDON, May 20.—(AP.)—Miss Megan Lloyd George, M. P., daughter of the former prime minister, was under sentence today to sit in the House of Lords for "following in her father's footsteps."

In a mock trial last night a jury found her guilty and decreed she should be transferred from the House of Commons so that she could not hear the speeches of her father, now leader of the Liberal party.

Philip Guedalla, historian and writer, prosecuted the charge, accusing her of speaking Welsh to the danger of the public, and of frequenting a building used by Lady Astor, American-born member of the House.

Pleading not guilty—or extenuating circumstances if guilty—Miss Lloyd George said she had been subjected to undue influence at an early age.

PITT STUDENTS DIVIDED ON EFFECT OF RUM IN SCHOOLS

BOYS BELIEVE USE OF LIQUOR ON INCREASE

Co-Eds, However, See Wane Of College Drinking, in Replies to Woodcock Quiz

Pitt students' answers to Prohibition Director Woodcock's queries as announced with his appointment of the Bureau of Prohibition Advisory Research, indicate they disagree on the subject, although some believe the dry law has contributed to delinquency among college and school students.

Woodcock's subjects for investigation by the prominent educators composing the council which convenes in Washington late this month, were:

"How has the operation of the amendment affected child delinquency?"

"How has it affected juvenile drinking?"

Some of the students feel there is less drinking now than when they entered school; others that there has been no increase.

SEES INCREASE

Ben Sufrine, managing editor, Pitt Weekly, said:

"I believe there is more drinking at Pitt now than four years ago, but in comparison with Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio State, Pitt is mild."

Edith Raschen, president, Women's Self Governing Association, said:

"I think there is not as much drinking at Pitt as four years ago. There is comparatively little any time. I cannot believe it has contributed to delinquency here."

Edward Hirshberg, football captain-elect, said:

"I believe the amendment has contributed to delinquency among almost all classes of students, and I believe drinking has increased among the students."

'ABOUT THE SAME'

Hiram H. Howard, chairman, Pitt Panther, said:

"I think it is about the same as four years ago."

"I don't drink nearly as much as when I came here. It used to be the thing for any party to be well supplied with liquor. Now there is not nearly so much."

A boy chosen similarly said:

"There is more drinking now than when I was a freshman. Most of my friends who never drank before are drinking regularly now."

Meeting with other winners in the clubrooms in the William Penn Hotel, she declared the rating, which places her at the head of the highest 5 per cent of the average college freshman class, was entirely unexpected. She said:

"I took the test for the fun of it, but I never expected to win an award."

Journalism constitutes her chief aspiration, but she said:

"There are so many interesting things to do I'm all mixed up."

FLEET OF 672 PLANES FLIES FOR CHICAGO

Biggest Air Parade in History Takes Off in Ohio; Visit Here Delayed to Friday

By EWARD B. LOCKETT.
International News Service.

FAIRFIELD AIR DEPOT, O., May 20.—(En route to Chicago with First Air Division.)—The longest air column in history roared through the skies Chicago-bound today after 672 planes had taken off from soggy fields at Fairfield Air Depot and Wright Field.

The formation had clear weather ahead after a day's delay which necessitated moving the entire maneuvers schedule back 24 hours. The planes plugged through a choppy cross wind along the route.

Orders were issued prior to the departure for the planes to land in single file formation in order to afford landing space in the driest spots on the five air fields which will quarter the ships and their personnel tonight.

Squadron and flight commanders warned all pilots to take every precaution to prevent nosing over when landings are made in Chicago.

The visit to Pittsburgh of the 105 fast Army fighting planes has been postponed until Friday morning, it was announced here late today. The planes, commanded by Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, en route to the Atlantic seaboard to participate in mimic warfare, were scheduled to arrive here tomorrow.

Coolidge Lauds Court As Nations' Mediator

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 20.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Apparently it will again be demonstrated that the worst things do not happen. Much anxiety has arisen over international differences concerning the proposed customs union between Germany and Austria. A serious impasse was feared when the question came up for discussion among the powers at Geneva. But without difficulty, five most vitally interested nations have indicated that the preliminary subject of legality should go to the World Court.

Mr. Coolidge

It would be difficult to provide a better illustration of the great importance as an instrument of good will and peace of that high tribunal. Germany and Austria claim a right to make a treaty. Other nations claim that such action violates a treaty made with them. With the present state of European feeling a diplomatic decision would be most difficult. But the interpretation of treaties is usually the clearest kind of judicial question. It appears so in this case. As the result of the existence of a court of competent jurisdiction, instead of a long dispute with a threat of force over technicalities we have the orderly process of reason and law. Such a settlement of international disputes is of inestimable value.

POLICE SET FIRE TO 'JUNGLE'

notified the "mayor," Paul Adams, to vacate within five days. Another warning of half an hour was given today.

In that half hour the village was the scene of activity. The personal belongings of the men were packed in bundles, discarded suitcases and trunks and carried out. The last breakfast was eaten by the men just before police came.

OIL APPLIED

Oil was splashed inside and outside of the shanties and the torch applied.

The men took their misfortune stoically, most of them having had contact with worse misfortune on other occasions. They would not have been Jungletown "citizens" had hard luck not have dogged their lives.

One of the men calmly fried two slices of ham he received yesterday for a day's handiwork while his shanty was blazing a few yards away.

Another man, having left the settlement to hide the old felt hat he had discarded for a newly acquired straw, returned to find his home smoldering.

Many of the men wandered into the Helping Hand shortly after the fire. Andrew J. Gibney, assistant director of the organization, said he had ample room to care for all of them.

The shanties represented the labor of many days. Many of them contained cupboards, articles of furniture and other commodities to make them homey.

WOMAN BURIED WITH GENERAL FOUND ALIVE

Husband and Marine Hero Killed in Vain Attempt To Save Her From Slide

International News Service.

CINQ MARS LA PILE, France, May 20.—Buried for more than 24 hours by the collapse of a wall that killed her husband and Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, of the United States Marine Corps, Mme. Denis Briand, a domestic, was found alive by rescue workers at the Chateau Farniere today.

Gen. Dunlap and Briant were instantly killed. Mme. Briand was believed to have escaped with only minor injuries.

TANKS AID IN SEARCH

The wall collapsed while Mme. Briand was feeding cattle on the grounds of the Chauteau Farniere, now converted into a pension and at which Gen. Dunlap and his wife were guests. The general and Briand, hearing the woman's cries, rushed to her rescue, but were immediately trapped by a miniature avalance that followed the collapse.

Gen. Dunlap's body and that of Briand were found after an all-night search by a battalion of French engineers, aided by tanks and tractors. It was lying face downward in the dirt and his head was crushed. Physicians who examined the body said death undoubtedly was instantaneous.

VOICE GUIDES RESCUERS

Throughout the night, the voice of Mme. Briand was heard at intervals, spurring the searchers to renewed efforts. She did not realize, rescue workers said, that the general and her husband were dead beneath the rock and earth only a few feet away from where she lay.

The body of Gen. Dunlap, World War hero and the youngest brigadier in the United States Marine Corps, was taken to Tours immediately after its recovery. Mrs. Dunlap, who witnessd her husband's death and stood vigil throughout the night while workers labored to extricate the victims, was prostrated with grief.

Father Takes Last $6 to Enter Clara in Film Beauty Contest

whatever you ask—even go back to school."

Robert Bow, whose help has been invaluable in writing these articles told me that he only had $6 in the world at the time Clara wanted to enter the contest.

"Look at her," he said. "If you will make pictures for $6 I know she will win the contest."

"I admit," said Robert Bow, "I was skeptical. I told Clara the contest wasn't on the square, that it was only a business proposition and that the winner had probably already been selected. But it meant so much to her I hadn't the heart to refuse her.

"When we reached home after the pictures were made, my wife upbraided me for spending our last cent on photographs. 'Even if Clara wins,' she said, 'I will not permit a daughter of mine to go into motion pictures. I have been religious all my life and Clara isn't going to lead a life of sin.'

Famous Judges

"Clara and I had to whisper when we wanted to talk about the contest. Finally, she and I went to Eugene V. Brewster's office, where the contest was being held," said Mr. Bow. "The judges were three famous artists, Neysa McMein, Harrison Fisher and Howard Chandler Christy.

"'Oh, we have thousands of pictures,' he told us. 'Your photograph doesn't even look much like you.'

"Clara and I went home discouraged. Her mother, to whom even the mention of motion pictures was enough to give her a headache, had to be spared. She heard us talking and I had to shield Clara from her annoyance. The movies were an obsession with her."

Clara had always felt if her mother had been in better health she would have sympathized with her in her screen ambitions.

"She loved me so dearly," said Clara, "and she wanted me to be happy, but you see, she was limited in her ideas because she was brought up by a straight-laced mother to whom even dancing was a sin. My mother taught me to pray and to believe in God and even now when everything is dark and there doesn't seem to be a single ray of light, I get down on my knees and say the childish prayer she taught me."

Peers Into Future

"Do you believe," Clara once asked me, "that the people who love you and who have gone on are standing near to help you?"

I told Clara I did believe that any mother who had loved her child would never be entirely separated from her.

Clara's eyes glowed.

"That's the way I feel," she said. "I don't often talk about it, but I know when I am facing my greatest trouble my mother is near and that her love and her understanding are helping me solve my problems."

Return to the time when Clara Bow awaited the verdict of the motion picture contest judges, it is interesting to note that this mother on whom Clara lavished affection and love all through the years was unable to understand at any time her daughter's interest in motion pictures.

Robert Bow tells of the days that he and Clara tiptoed through the poor little room in Brooklyn trying not to upset the sick mother by appearing too eager for news from the contest.

Gets Telegram

At last after waiting for what seemed weeks, which in reality was only a brief three days, a telegram came asking Clara to call at the motion picture magazine offices on Duffield street, Brooklyn.

Clara wore a cheap little plaid dress and a red tam o'shanter. The little dress, which cost 98 cents, had been made by a cousin. Clara, in describing that day, told me that she felt very well satisfied with herself until she walked into Eugene Brewster's office. There sat girls, women and other escorts, dressed in the height of style.

"They looked me over," Clara said, "and now, when I think back and realize how funny I must have looked, I do not blame them for laughing. At that time I was sensitive about my poverty and I wanted to get out of that office where women dressed in expensive furs and velvet gowns ridiculed my poor home-made dress. My heart sank. I was foolish, I said to myself, to think I could compete with these rich girls."

After several moments of being stared at Clara ran from the room, not caring much where she went just so she could get away from these other contestants.

Developments in the spectacular life of Clara Bow come rapidly in the next installment, which tells of her victory in the beauty contest and its most unexpected and tragic aftermath. Read tomorrow's continuation of the REAL story of the "It" girl, appearing in the Sun-Telegraph exclusively in Pittsburgh.

Unsung New Yorkers

NEW YORK, May 20.

TOM WAS a bookmaker. Not one of the biggest by any matter of means. But a nice enough fellow and earning sufficient money to support himself in a style to which he had rarely been accustomed. During the winter he made book in a cigar store. In the summer he held forth at the Belmont, Jamaica, Aqueduct and Saratoga race tracks.

It was in the latter spot that Tom met Fred. Fred was—and still is, I suppose—an expert card sharp. Tom grew to like the man, and they spent many of their evenings together. After the Saratoga meeting came to a close, they traveled back to Broadway on the same train. And it was while they were riding toward New York that Fred unfolded a proposition to the bookmaker.

His proposition was, as you will readily recognize, one of the oldest rackets in the world. But Tom considered Fred a swell guy. And he listened to the story as though it were something as fresh as a new-born babe.

"Tom," said the card sharp, "here's the idea I have in mind. As far as the boats are concerned, I'm pretty well washed up. The next time they nail me on a liner, I'm liable to be shoved into jail for a long, long time.

"Now, look. You're earning pretty good money on the ponies, but there's no reason in the world why you shouldn't triple your income if you can. Is there?"

Tom agreed there was absolutely no reason. As a matter of fact, he said, it sounded fine to him.

"Well," Fred went on, "it's an absolute cinch. As you know, any chap who plays the horses is basically a sucker. A man who will ride his dough on the ponies is pretty certain to let it ride on other things. Why not cards?

"You see, Tom, you're in a great spot to meet those birds. If I tried to get them into a poker game, they'd back away from me as though I was poison of some sort. But when you send me in and actually sit down in the game, they'll go for it in a big way.

"Here's the way it will work. You meet a chump who looks like a prize sucker. You become friendly with him and buy him a meal at my hotel. I just happen to come along. I appear to be a little stewy and you suggest a three-handed poker game. At the same time, you give the sucker the idea that I don't know how to play at all and always lose my dough.

"We then sit down and proceed to play. I, of course, win all the money. To make it look good, you lose just as much money as the sucker and you beef just as loudly.

"After he's gone, of course, I give you your money back and we split the profits fifty-fifty. It's a game that has been worked successfully for plenty of years and there's no reason why we should have any trouble with it.

"How does it strike you?"

Tom was a trifle dubious.

"It's a pretty crooked racket, Fred," he replied. "I'm just a little bit afaid of it. I don't like crooked rackets."

The card sharp laughed loudly.

"That a hot one," he announced. "If you know a horse hasn't a chance to win a race because the jockey's going to hold him back, you still accept bets on that horse, don't you? You know your player can't win—and I know mine can't win. What's the difference?"

"I guess you're right, Fred," nodded Tom.

"Good," cried Fred. "Then we're partners?"

"We're partners," said Tom . . .

* * *

For several months everything went along in beautiful fashion. Fred and Tom were both making plenty of easy money. After the first few sessions, Tom discovered that the racket was very simple. He began to enjoy his acting and he no longer had any qualms about the crooked angles of the game. Indeed he soon began to devote more time to the card racket than he did to his bookmaking.

It wasn't so long ago that Tom picked up what he considered the prize boob of all time. This fellow had plenty of money and seemed only too willing to toss it away. Tom rushed him over to Fred and proceeded to suggest the good old poker game. The sucker nodded affably and the game began a few minutes later.

It wasn't long before the dope began to suggest higher stakes.

"This game isn't sporty enough for me," cried the sucker. "Whadaya say we take the roof off entirely? No limit. That's the kind of a game I like."

Tom nodded and grinned to himself. He had expected this to happen, and he had plenty of money in his pocket.

"I don't usually like to play for such stakes," he replied, as though he were John Barrymore's uncle, "but as long as we're all friends, I suppose we might as well have a little excitement. You're on."

So the game went on. The sucker, as you might suspect, was losing steadily. Tom, as usual, was keeping him company. And Fred was placing the money in neat little piles in front of him.

After some 40 minutes' play the inevitable big pot came along. Fred dealt four tens to the sucker and four jacks to himself. Tom knew all about it. He kept tossing bill after bill into the pot in order to make the play just that much heavier.

When Fred finally raked in the pot there was about $14,000 of the sucker's money on the table and about $12,000 of Tom's. The bookmaker felt like bursting into song. This was far and away the biggest killing they had ever made.

But the chump wasn't through yet. He stood up and loudly announced that he was going out for more money. As he went to the closet for his hat Fred spoke to Tom.

"I'm going with this sap while he gets his money," he whispered. "He's too good a thing to lose."

The bookmaker nodded agreeably. As usual, Fred was right. Good old Freddie. He had certainly had the right idea about this card racket. Why, if it hadn't been for him Tom would never be making all this easy money. Good old Freddie!

When an hour passed and neither Fred nor the sucker returned, Tom began to grow slightly nervous. After two hours, he was on the verge of hysteria. When three hours had elapsed, he knew he had been clipped.

And he was quite right. For the all-too-willing sucker had been another card sharp—and he and Fred had double-crossed the bookmaker to the extent of some $12,000!

Tom's next move was a classic. He clapped his hat on his head and dashed to the detectives' room of a nearby police station. There, to a group of unsympathetic detectives, he unfolded the whole sad story.

"Well," grunted one officer. "Suppose we find your friend, Fred. What do you want us to do with him?"

Dormont Police Chief Says Park Ignored Charge Against Baseball Pool Dealer

Dormont Officers Confiscate 4,000 Baseball Pool Tickets in Auto

Seizure of more than 4,000 tickets on the General Braddock Sales baseball pool, together with a list of distributors in Allegheny County and throughout the tri-state district, by Dormont police has precipitated a clash between Police Chief Ralph Miller, of Dormont, and District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Today Park said there was no local distributors named in the list, while Chief Miller insisted there were two books, one of local distributors and one for Ohio, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania towns.

The pool tickets were seized yesterday when Chief Miller arrested John A. Carey, of 175 Leckey way, North Side, accused of violating the automobile laws. The pool tickets were found in his car, Miller said.

Miller, after taking the prisoner to the District Attorney's office, said he had been instructed by Park to return the prisoner to Dormont and prosecute him on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Park said:

"The matter was investigated by Assistant District Attorney Ralph E. Hunter, who reported the distributors were located in Ohio and West Virginia. Possession of pool tickets does not constitute a crime. However, the case is being further investigated. I cannot give the public everything I do in connection with a police case."

Chief Miller said Carey had been pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. R. S. Henzell, of Glenmore avenue, Dormont. In the police station, Miller said, Carey talked freely about being "a big shot in the baseball pool racket." Miller then took Carey, the tickets and the books containing the names of distributors to Park's office.

In Carey's car, police said, were found the tickets and the two small books containing names of the out-of-town and local dealers. In the out-of-town book appeared the names, addresses and telephone numbers of persons in Akron, Canton, New Castle, Cleveland, Sharon, Steubenville, Ellwood City and Evans City. A winners' sheet from last week's pool also was found in the car.

Carey was arrested in McFarland road when, Chief Miller and Motorcycle Patrolman F. W. Wilson say, they noticed him driving in a reckless manner.

A Special Sale of Men's Shoes

One of the makers of our regular higher-priced footwear lines had a surplus of leather and offered to make up several hundred pairs of shoes, over our regular standard lasts, at a concession of price which makes the above figure possible.

We thought that many of our customers would be glad to make this saving on a pair of summer oxfords, so we told the manufacturer to go ahead. We stipulated our best selling models in a complete size range, and had them made up in black calf only. Step this way tomorrow, gentlemen, and have a new pair of shoes, at close to half the regular figure!

The average man knocks about far more in summer than at any other season—trips, outings, looking after the yard—a hundred and one activities besides his regular day's work. All hard on suits—with no protective topcoat to bear the brunt of the wear.

Wear a Steelcraft this summer and see how it stands up under hard service. Note how it keeps its shape under trying conditions. Fine tailoring, including quite a bit of hand work, and hardy fabrics are the answer.

Then there are the extra trousers, a convenience and an economy not to be overlooked.

Commons Denies Sanction of Lotteries

LONDON, May 20.—(AP.)—The House of Commons came down hard on advocates of legalization of lotteries in support of hospitals, defeating by 181 to 58 an application by a Conservative member for leave to introduce a bill authorizing the operation of such lotteries.

There has been considerable agitation in favor of loosening up the English laws in this respect in view of the great sums which have gone out of the country into the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on horse races while charitable institutions at home need money.

DUNN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CHAMBER

New Head of Trade Body Long Active Civic Leader; Other Officers Named

Thomas A. Dunn, general manager of the Consolidated Ice Company, was named president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce at the annual election last night. Dunn has had 20 years' experience in civic work and a 40-year background in business. He was Democratic candidate for mayor in the last city election.

Attorney Charles K. Robinson was elected first vice president; William P. Witherow, vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, second vice president; Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, third vice president; W. S. Lindermann, president of the Duquesne National Bank, treasurer, and D. S. Kerr, of the Duquesne National Bank, assistant to the treasurer.

CIVIC LEADER

President Dunn has been a member of the directorate of the chamber 14 years, and, as chairman of the chamber's first committee on aviation, led the fight for establishment of Rodgers Field. He has led three delegations in Harrisburg within 10 years in successful efforts against proposed elective school boards. As chairman of the chamber's railroad and transportation committee he was spokesman for Pittsburgh interests in the lake cargo rate case, participating in arguments which resulted in Pittsburgh winning the first decision.

Vice Presidents Witherow and Dr. Weidlein are new members of the board. Witherow was appointed to succeed Morris Knowles, who resigned because of ill health. Dr. Weidlein was elected last Thursday. Gen. Albert J. Logan, who was named temporary chairman for the election, yesterday completed his fortieth year as a director of the chamber.

CLUB WOMEN ASSAIL LETTER

"Neither a fair, nor a complete statement," the independent faction at the Congress of Clubs terms the letter sent out by the eight members of the nominating committee who are working for the election of Mrs. T. M. Stahlman. In a reply mailed to Congress voters yesterday, the independents ask for the support of their presidential candidate, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, and Mrs. Edmond Englert, candidate for second vice president.

The letter states that some of the signers of the Stahlman letter were "not for" Mrs. Stahlman in the nominating committee sessions, and that through Mrs. Miller's friends on the nominating committee, a compromise candidate, Mrs. Charles S. Miller, was proposed and voted for. The vote for her and Mrs. Stahlman would have been a tie, had the chairman of the committee not voted, the letter points out. It is signed by Mrs. Hubert Chapman, Mrs. Harold M. Irons and Mrs. C. C. Poling, the Miller supporters on the nominating committee.

Bogus Bill Passer Gets 60-Day Term

P. C. W. UNVEILS TABLETS TO SCIENTISTS

Educators, Alumni Attend Ceremony Honoring 28 Men Chosen by Colleagues

The names of 28 living scientists of the United States have been engraved upon two stone tablets above the entrance of the new Louise C. Buhl Hall of Science at Pennsylvania College for Women. Last night the tablets were unveiled by Dr. W. D. Bancroft, professor of chemistry, Cornell University, at a ceremony attended by Pittsburgh scientists and alumni of the school.

At a dinner in Woodland Hall, preceding the ceremony, Dr. Anna R. Whiting, faculty member, read the names inscribed on the tablets. Dr. Bancroft was introduced by Dr. E. R. Weidlein, of Mellon Institute, and spoke on "The Borderlands." Dr. Earl K. Wallace, head of the science department at P. C. W., explained the method of selection of names by a national poll conducted by the science seminar of the college. Inquiries were sent to 902 scientists whose names are starred in American Men of Science asking nominations. The 28 were chosen by their colleagues.

Mabel Blacklists Missouri on Grapes

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt has blacklisted Missouri as sales territory for her California grape concentrate clients.

The former assistant attorney general and prohibition prosecutor said today she had advised Fruit Industries, Ltd., "to stay away from Missouri" in their nation-wide sales campaign. She explained:

"I was uncertain as to the scope of the state law there. The sale of grape concentrates is not illegal under the federal law, but Missouri has a very stringent statute covering fruit juices."

Church Looter Gets Life Term in Spain

MADRID, May 20.—(AP.)—Dispatches from Malaga today said that Antonio Luque Jurado had been sentenced to life imprisonment for attacking and looting Catholic Church property during the recent incendiarist riots. Two others were given long sentences for the same offenses after conviction by a court-martial.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

How Do You Act When You Visit Country Friends?

Lovely spring weather! Great time to run down in the country for the week-end, and see Mabel 'n' John—yes? So you rush to the telephone and call up Ed and Rose and Bill 'n' Mary—

"Don't mind taking anything," you say. "They've got everything—and gosh, they'll just be tickled pink, for they must be awful lonely, living way off like that. So be ready at 5—we'll go down tonight and give them a Good Surprise!"

That's what you say? And what do you think Mabel and John will be saying when they see you barging in?

Visitors Make Work

Listen in on Mrs. H. and she'll tell you. Once upon a time she, too, thought it was Perfectly Lovely for the gang to come down "as a surprise." But no more!

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I don't know what you look like or who you are, but I want you to know that something you once said about City Visitors rang the bell for me. It was the mental gong to end another round of marital boxing.

"I live in the country. It takes half an hour to come out from the city. And they come—and how!

"I love people. I want company. But I want company with some sense! I like people to use an ash tray once in a while, not the floor. And my furniture is all ringed, too, from setting drinks down on it. And how I hate the stuff, anyway! But these locusts who come down on me invariably bring it. I spend most of Thursday, Friday and Saturday cleaning up for Sunday's company. Then I begin all over again Monday, and clean up after them. Rinsing glasses, collecting empty bottles. Picking up scraps of food. Sweeping up ashes. Picking up clothes in the totally demoralized bedrooms. Cleaning. Dusting. Gosh!

"We're not rich. My week's supplies are shot to blazes by these impromptu binges. But our 'company' never seems to think of what we have to spend, or the crimp it puts in our bank account. It's terrible! My husband and I quarrel about it.

Damage Property

"I'm sick, too, of him asking flocks of people to come out at 10 or 11 o'clock at night, after I'm in bed. We're living beyond our means, and most of what we spend goes down the gullets of the jazz hounds who raise cain here.

"And do we get asked to parties at their homes? We do not! What? Mrs. Jones, the bride, spoil her little nest by entertaining? I should say not! Now, Mrs. Good Sport (that's me), that's different! She's been married a long time and her furniture is dogeared anyway. She doesn't mind a few more scratches!

"One of them ran over my flower bed . . . the flower bed that I've nursed and coddled and taken such care of . . . with his darned sport roadster. And did he apologize? Not him! He hadn't done anything! He needed room!

"And that isn't all, either. We have a little wood lot where campers could stay . . . if they'd behave themselves! But you should see it after one has stayed there! They smash everything. Climb into the orchard and smash fruit trees. Raid the melon patch. Hog our berries, and they even leave old cans and papers in the front yard if we don't happen to be home. What ails people anyway? Are they crazy?

"And summer visitors is right! None of these jazz hounds ever run up to see us in the winter. Oh, my no! It's too cold then!

"If we went to town, and messed up people's front yards and ran over flower beds . . . wouldn't we get it? I'll tell the world we would! Sometimes I'm tempted to do it, too, just to show these City Slickers how it feels. What makes them act that way, anyway? Is it pure cussedness? Mrs. Henry H."

What makes 'em act like that? I dunno, Lady. You've got me. I've always wondered, myself. Pure cussedness? No. I wouldn't go so far as to say that. My hunch is . . . and I've met plenty of that breed of ducks . . . is that there are two reasons for 'em.

Think Only of Selves

One is that they've a curious blind spot where other folks' feelings and belongings are concerned. They have such a record crush on No. 1 that they simply can't see why you and I shouldn't be Tickled Pink to set a banquet for 'em, gratis.

And most of 'em seem to suffer from the comfortable delusion that everything in the country, like Topsy, "just growed." They have no idea that it takes the same two-fisted application to work . . . and maybe more of it . . . to make Nature bloom, as it does to collect the old pay check in town. Or that the pumpkins and corn and fruit they graft so cheerfully are Mister Farmer's pay checks. The only one he has.

But maybe these guesses are wrong. How about it, Mister Camper? Missis Week-End-Motorist? Let's have the low-down on Your side. You know darned well that you'd call a cop, pronto, if Silas Corntossel drove into your front yard and cluttered it up with tire tracks and eggshells and defunct paper sacks . . . or cleaned up on your ice box.

Then why aren't you ashamed to bust in on him like that?

Best for the Kitchen

Stainless steel knives and forks for the kitchen are a joy, first on account of their ever-shining qualities and then, too, odors do not seem to cling to them as to ordinary steel. Onion and fish odors readily wash off without strenuous measures.

A Noble Trait of Great Men Has Been Devotion to Mothers, Says Fay King

I CAN'T GO BACK HOME, I'M SUCH A FAILURE
SHE LOVES YOU JUST THE SAME!
THE ONLY REWARD SHE WANTS IS THAT YOU WILL LOVE AND REMEMBER HER
DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE TO APPRECIATE HER FAY-KING

By FAY KING

An outstanding trait in the character of great men has been devotion to their mothers.

We can trace it through ancient and modern history.

Alexander the Great received a letter criticizing his mother, who had many faults. But he said as he destroyed it, "One mother's tears can blot out pages like this."

Napoleon was devoted to his wise mother, and always consulted her. When he was conferring royal titles upon his family, she chose to be called only Madame Mother. Time and events could not dim or change that.

Lincoln's own mother died, but he was devoted to his good stepmother, who loved him as her own.

From the remote past to the present we see mothers loved and honored.

Love's Reawakening -:- Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Happiness on Christmas Eve Is Threatened

I knew better than to protest Katherine's decision, when she said she meant to read herself to sleep instead of coming down to join the Christmas eve festivities. But as I kissed her and went away with Mary, my heart was heavy with concern for my little kinswoman, for I claimed her as such because of her marriage to my "brother-cousin," Jack Bickett.

Of all the people gathered within the farmhouse on this night so crowded with festivities and gladness, here was the only real sad heart. Of course, no one of the grown-ups was without some worry or depression, but with the rest of us, joy outweighed any anxiety we might have. But Katherine, I knew, was singularly lonely, not so much because of the absence of her husband in South America, but because of his queer attitude toward her, and because of the doubt she had as to the status in his life of the woman, a sister of a fellow engineer, who was sharing their lonely life.

I guessed that she faced something very like a defection in her own heart, also. No woman so neglected as she could be wholly unmoved by the knowledge that brilliant handsome Hal Meredith, noted alienist, only waited the word from her that her marriage no longer bound her, to come to her with the offer of his name and his whole life's devotion.

My mind went back to the days before I met Dicky when my "brother-cousin" was my girlish hero. It was during one of his absences in South America that Dicky had swept me off my feet with his tempestuous wooing, and married me. When Jack had returned, ignorant of my marriage, I had discovered that he had counted on winning me.

I knew that if I never had met Dicky, I in all probability would have yielded to Jack, and Katherine's sad life might have been mine. For Jack, wounded in France during the war where he had met Katherine, nursing in Dr. Braithwaite's hospital, had brought to his bride a shattered body and a brooding brain which seemed to be incapable of ever regaining a normal, cheery outlook upon life.

What a tangled web it was! Katherine's first love, I was sure had been Hal Meredith when he, an interne and she, a probationer, shared the hardships and friendships of hospital training. Young Meredith's debt of gratitude to a distinguished alienist, had forced his marriage to the daughter of the elder man, but that he never had forgotten Katherine.

Marion slipped her hand through my arm and pressed it.

"All right, dearest, I'll try not to think of anything sad again," I told her.

"How are you going to get those other boys to bed?" she asked. "Nobody'd mind their staying up, of course, but there's a lot to do to that basement, isn't there?"

"Hush!" I said, mechanically, although her voice was so low, no one downstairs possibly could have heard it. "I have a scheme, but I may want you to back me up. I'm not going to tell you what it is, because I want your aid to be spontaneous, but please stick close to me until you have to go back to The Larches."

"Which will have to be soon," she said. "They won't miss us for a little while, but Ronald is the host over there, you know."

"Yes, I know, and I won't keep you but a minute or two."

We went directly to the living room where we found everybody gathered around the Christmas tree.

"There!" Lillian turned to me, triumphantly: "Isn't that the most scrumptous thing you ever saw. Switch off the room lights, Bill, and Hank, switch on the tree lights."

There was a second of darkness, and then, like a thing of fairyland, the tree sprang into glowing points of lights.

"And it's all due to the boys! They are the best trimmers I ever saw. Didn't they do a quick job?"

"Indeed you did," I said, turning to the boys, "but I knew you would, and I'm going to give you a reward. All the young people from The Larches are coming over to dance about 11 o'clock, and I shall see that you have a dance with every girl."

"Wh-what?" both boys exclaimed, patently horror-stricken.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

It is hard to be a graceful hostess when serving a lemon meringue pie, but if the knife is wet with cold water before cutting into the pie the meringue will not stick and pull from the slice.

Surfaces that are to be painted must be cleaned first or it will result in a streaky job that is apt to peel off readily. Remove all dust, dirt and blemishes before starting the painting job.

Change in Interest Rates on Bank Deposits

NOTICE

On May 13, 1931, the Members of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association unanimously recommended that on and after June 1, 1931, the member banks of said Association would not accept new savings or time accounts at a rate of interest to exceed three per cent per annum.

This reduction was deemed absolutely necessary and in keeping with sound banking as a result of the prevailing low rates of returns upon those types of liquid investments in which banks must carry a large proportion of their funds for the protection of their depositors and stockholders.

For these reasons the following banks have agreed to comply with the letter and spirit of said resolution:

LANG EXTRA JOB ITEM QUIZZED

Because information was not complete, city Council has sent back to Public Works Director Edward G. Lang his request for approval of extra work done in conjunction with the improvement of Independence street.

Lang asked Council to approve an item for extra work to be done by Narduli & Sons Company. The work, he said, was to brace a building within the street lines, not taken into consideration when the contract was let. No estimate of cost of the work was presented, so the communication was returned.

Extra work items were under fire in the probe of the Works Department conducted recently by Henry Oliver Evans, former city controller.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Why They're Giants and Dwarfs

Who has not been to the circus and been thrilled by the elephants, tigers and lions? Our curiosity was aroused by the entrance of the "tallest man in the world," or "the smallest." As youngsters, we went home and dreamed of the giant. His wrists were as large as our legs, and his jaw protruded so that we actually believed we could walk on it.

Dr. Copeland

What are there giants? Why are there dwarfs?

There are certain glands in the body which secrete substances having a marked effect on the growth of the body. Any disturbance in one of these glands may be shown by changes in the growth and development of the body.

Of all these glands, the so-called "ductless glands," the "pituitary gland" is of the greatest importance. This particular gland is located in the floor of the brain.

It is composed of two parts, an anterior lobe and a posterior lobe. The anterior, or front lobe, influences growth and development and is necessary to life. The posterior, or rear lobe, has marked influence on the reception by the body of the fats and carbohydrates we take in our foods.

In giants there is a condition called by the doctors "acromegaly." In this disease, because it really is a disease, there is a disturbance in the anterior lobe of the pituitary. It is characterized by an increase in the size of the face, hands and feet. If it comes on late in life there may be no other signs. If the disease occurs in childhood, it leads to gigantism. It accounts for the remarkable growth of the man in the circus.

In acromegaly there is a general enlargement of the bones of the body, but the skeleton maintains its proportions. The bones of the face, particularly the nose and jawbone, become thickened and enlarged, as do the hands and feet.

Headache is a common symptom. It is usually severe in nature and located in the front of the head. Deafness occurs frequently. There is a change in the disposition of the individual, who becomes irritable and easily depressed.

The changes in the facial makeup are first noticed. There is a gradual increase in the size of the features. The victim finds that he must take a larger size of hat and gloves.

By way of treatment, little has been offered for this unusual condition. Where the disturbance of the pituitary gland is due to the pressure of a tumor surgery has been of value. Extracts of the gland have been tried with little success.

When we more fully understand the mechanism and control of the ductless glands we will be able to offer more than we can at present.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

Black creases in the knuckles, appearing after heavy work is done, can be dug out with a mixture of soap suds and corn meal. The meal gives forth a starchy substance that the skin surface likes. Oatmeal, less gritty, is preferred for cleaning the face.

Small, felt hats that press upon the forehead are a menace to the health of scalp and hair. Interference with circulation not only starves the hair of groceries necessary for its growth, but may be the cause of headaches. The ideal hat allows a free circulation of air. But where can you find it?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

All the Meaning in the World

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several of my girl friends have requested my picture and upon offering it to them they wanted me to write something on it. I would appreciate it very much if you would suggest a few ways that a photograph could be autographed.

Which would be better, to autograph the picture with the first name only, or the first and last name? RAY.

It is almost impossible for a stranger to tell you what this greeting should be on a photograph. Every syllable of this message depends, of course, on your relationship or degree of friendship with the person to whom you are presenting the photograph.

There is, to me, something so pleasant and appropriate about "To Mary, from Jane," that I would like to suggest this first. Although this may seem colorless, at first, to you, really there is all the meaning in the world that both friends may read into this. Or "To Mary, with devoted love from Jane," or "To my dear friend Mary, from her friend Jane," or "To you, dearest Mary, from your affectionate friend Jane."

If you autograph one of your photographs to a boy or man, then the "To Tom, from Helena" message is the best and wisest, I think.

RIVER DRAGGED FOR PITT MAN

The Allegheny River was being dragged today for the body of Jack Levy, 20, University of Pittsburgh student, of 1103 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, who was drowned late yesterday when the canoe in which he and a companion were riding capsized in the river near the Bessemer Bridge, Oakmont.

William Cohen, of Jefferson apartments, Squirrel Hill, Levy's companion, swam to safety. The youths were visiting at the Lazy Bones camp. The drowning was the first of the camping season.

The current caught the craft broadside, upsetting it. Both were reputed fair swimmers. Fifty yards from the floating canoe, Levy, according to Cohen, became exhausted and said to Cohen:

"I can't make it."

Cohen said he attempted to help him, but Levy insisted he was able to return to the canoe and wait there for assistance. Cohen reached shore, but failed to sight his companion.

Chief of Police Charles Helwig, of Oakmont, was notified and the dragging of the river began.

Levy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Levy. Besides his parents, he leaves an older brother, Lester. The father is a member of the McKees Rocks Board of Education.

'DEBT' TO RURAL GROUP KILLS BALL BILL

Senate's Law and Order Committee Lets G. O. P. 'Pay' for Vote Given Daix

HARRISBURG, M -- 20.—The Denning Sunday baseball bill is dead today and the archaic blue laws of 1794 still live.

With the death of the bill in the Senate's Law and Order Committee last night, the hopes of the liberals for the present session were buried.

It was another indication that under the present conditions, the demands of the cities are hopelessly overridden by the rural members, and it proved that the Republican state organization had paid its debt to the rural senators who had voted for Daix for president pro tem of the Senate, against Mansfield.

FIGHT JUST BEGUN

But the same leaders who would not assist in having the bill moved out were optimistic that at the next session, when promises might not be so easily given, the overwhelming sentiment of the people would be recognized by modification.

They agreed the fight had just begun. The killing of the bill in the Law and Order Committee last night found little opposition. Four Philadelphia members spoke in behalf of the measure. One Allegheny County man, Herman Brandt, did not express himself.

The proposal to send the Denning bill onto the floor was swept away by a shout of noes. To save their colleagues, no vote was taken.

KILLED BY RURAL VOTE

The makeup of the committee, rural by a count of at least four to one, made the killing an easy job.

It had been predicted that no liberal legislation could emerge from the committee. That was reported as the promise made during the president pro tem fight, when Gov. Pinchot's man, Mansfield, was whipped and the organization of the Senate and its committees turned against him by those who had promised him the most aid—the church people.

Delegations of clergymen opposed the change yesterday afternoon, when William A. Roper, city councilman of Philadelphia and former Princeton coach, and Senators Joseph Trainor and Samuel Salus, of the eastern city, tried to get the bill out. The committee meeting was postponed three times, while the battle waged behind the scenes.

SUCCESS FORECAST

Roper said his forces had given up the fight for this session, explaining:

"It is hopeless, although regrettable.

"The adverse action of the committee is, in my opinion, a reflection of only a small part of the sentiment of the people of the state.

"The populous communities of the commonwealth are overwhelmingly in favor of legalized Sunday baseball and the great development of sentiment in the last six months clearly presages the ultimate enactment of a Sunday baseball law."

The Rev. Thomas T. Mutchler, lobbyist of the Lord's Day Alliance, pronounced the act one of wisdom on the part of an intelligent committee.

Harris Pension Bill Gets House Approval

HARRISBURG, May 20.—(AP.)—The Harris Senate bill providing for a referendum on a constitutional amendment to permit old age pensions and legalize mothers' assistance has been passed by the House. The bill must be passed by another session of the General Assembly and then submitted to the electorate.

Deputy Mayor Bill On Senate Calendar

HARRISBURG, May 20.—The bill of Representative Max Spann to create the office of deputy mayor in Pittsburgh is before the Senate for action. It passed the House Monday, was reported from committee in the Senate last night, and today is on the second reading calendar in the Upper House.

Street Repair Bill Faces Senate Action

HARRISBURG, May 20.—Senator James J. Coyne's bill, which would make the state responsible for maintenance and reconstruction of more than 38 miles of Pittsburgh streets, is scheduled for final action in the Senate today.

The measure, which makes state highways of 300 miles of streets outside of Philadelphia, was returned to the Senate calendar late yesterday. It must pass the House also before it reaches Gov. Pinchot for approval.

EXTRA SENATOR FIGHT LOST

HARRISBURG, May 20.—The bill of Senator Frank J. Harris, Crafton, to give Allegheny County a seventh member in the State Senate, was killed by the Senate Committee on Legislative Apportionment.

Harris put up a fight in committee to get the extra senator for his county, and argued the Constitution makes it mandatory to redistrict the state for legislators immediately after each census.

The committee overruled him and decided it is not necessary to reapportion the seats, citing the Legislature took no such action in 1901 or 1911, immediately after a census in each instance, but decided to make the change in 1906.

Pitt Appropriation Bills Before Senate

HARRISBURG, May 20.—The Senate has received from committee bills appropriating $1,650,000 to the University of Pittsburgh, $60,000 to the Falk Clinic at the university, and $346,500 for Dixmont Hospital.

Hospital Aid Bills Passed by House

HARRISBURG, May 20.—The Steedle bills, making appropriations to state-aid hospitals and homes, were passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. Representative Steedle announced that a section would be added in the Senate to provide that none of the appropriations contained therein would be effective in the cases of sectarian or denominational institutions.

P. S. C. CONTROL BILL IN HOUSE

HARRISBURG, May 20.—Coming before the House today on special order of business is the bill of Senator Howell, of Lackawanna. This bill, passed by the Senate, provides that rate increases of utilities could not become effective until after approval of the Public Service Commission.

The House Public Utilities Committee amended the bill to give the Governor the right of dismissal over commissioners and to give the commission control over security issues. The bill in its amended form is under consideration today on second reading. An effort will be made to strike out the amendment on dismissal of commission members.

The House Utilities Committee also has amended a bill of Senator McClure, Delaware, to give the Governor power to dismiss commissioners and control over security issues. This measure, when it passed the Senate, provided a "people's counsel" to prosecute cases before the commission, granted aid to municipalities and individuals in the fighting of rate cases and also made commission approval necessary before rate increases become effective.

RIPLEY TALKS ON RADIO FROM SHIP IN MID-ATLANTIC

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

They've talked from airplanes, dirigibles, submarines, skyscrapers, coal mines, and now—"Believe It Or Not"—Robert L. Ripley's voice on KDKA at 7:45 tonight is to come from the S. S. Leviathan in mid-Atlantic, 1,000 miles at sea!

"Rip" will pick up a telephone and speak as in ordinary conversation, telling about some of the strange things he discovered abroad. A good stunt; don't miss it.

We've always admired "Hell and Maria" Dawes for the delightful "Melody" he composed while yet a young man getting notes out of a violin. When his brother, Rufus Dawes, speaks on WCAE at 10:30 the orchestra is to play the composition.

"Riggs and Moke—the Crazy Pair" (WCAE, 11) have been engaged to sing on WTAM, Cleveland, this Saturday at 15 after midnight. Keep an ear on these boys!

* * *

Twirl the dials to WJZ, WEAF, WABC at 11:30 to catch Brig. Gen. Benjamin Foulois' address "The Big Push"—describing in detail the Army airplane maneuvers over New York City this Saturday. He is to speak from Dayton, O., where hundreds of planes are being massed for the mythical attack.

* * *

Pilot Charles Weiblen's successful landing of a crippled airplane with three women passengers aboard at Bettis Field last week is to be dramatized on Columbia-WJAS this Friday night at 10:30.

* * *

Tea for Two: Robert Simmons is to take the place of James Melton on that popular liquid refreshment hour via KDKA Thursday night . . . Robert is to collect a nifty sum while James' contract runs on until his return from Europe with the Revelers . . .

Ho! Hum! breathes Aileen Jobes, 260 South Mathilda street, as she dashes us a letter telling of her DX feat . . . 401 stations including 30 on the Pacific coast, 10 in Mexico, and altogether 40 stations more than 2,000 miles away.

QUESTION A DAY:

My friend says the Red Arrow Quartet and the Troubadours at KDKA are the same. I say they are not. As a box of cigars hinges on your answer please print as soon as possible.—M. E. Baltz, 329 Hawkins avenue, Braddock.

Answer—Enjoy the smokes, Mr. Baltz, they are two separate and distinct organizations.

Norma Altwater, Pittsburgh soprano, participated in the first television fashion review at WGBS, New York, yesterday. Observers said they had no difficulty in recognizing the different gowns.

STUDIO LIGHTS

Columbia is to add another hour of dance music beginning next Monday, changing the WABC signoff from 1 to 2 a. m. .

Wynne Hartley, who co-stars with Jane Gibson on WJAS, once played the organ in one of our better known theaters . . .

Recognize Ted Kay's voice on KQV? And Bebe Falvo, too? Bebe leaves for Atlantic City soon to sing in Etzi Covato's new eating house, the Beaux Arts . . .

Irene Bardoni concludes her Columbia-WJAS series on May 31 . . . and Voters' Service ends its WEAF-WCAE program next Tuesday . . .

A bronze tablet commemorating the broadcasting of religious services through KDKA to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd when he explored the North and South Poles is to be dedicated this Sunday by the Rev. Hugh Thomas Kerr, of Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

Make Health Fudge containing YEAST

Hear the story on KDKA
Twenty Fingers of Sweetness and Mary Mildred McAteer, Guest Artist
Wednesday Evening at 7:15

You know the yeast is there, for you put it in yourself. You know it is alive and active, for there's no heat applied to cook it. But you don't taste it. What you taste is a delicious confection. This uncooked Fudge can be made quickly, with surprising ease, and will keep perfectly for two or three days.

Here's How It's Done

1 box Swansdown Sugar
3 cakes Yeast
1 teaspoon Vanilla
4 teaspoons (2 tablespoons) melted Butter
3 squares Baker's Chocolate
4 teaspoons Cream

Mix your yeast and vanilla in bowl. Add melted butter and cream, and mix thoroughly. Now stir in Swansdown Sugar till mixture is smooth. Add melted chocolate and beat till fluffy, pour on buttered plate and let set till slightly stiff. Cut in squares and keep in cool place till ready to serve. Delicious! Nuts or fruits may be added if desired.

Yet you'll find me wherever 'the boys' get together"

Up in this bird's nest of a turret, or breasting the tides of a crowded city street, one welcomes the company of a good cigarette. And a good cigarette means good tobaccos. What smokers taste in Chesterfield is the aroma of riper, milder, better tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to bring out their finest flavor and fragrance.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

The Loudspeaker
—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Barnums of the show world are storming the television gates. There is a circus atmosphere to the early presentations of the sight-and-sound studios.

The Barnums long ago learned that people like to be startled. Very well, they will startle them even at the fireside. Not only will they lead the foremost stars of the stage to the camera—the flying camera, they call it—but they will offer everything from fashion parades to those ambitious specialists who have actually learned to play songs on tree leaves.

Moreover, they obtain the services of the stage stars with little or no unstrapping of the wallet, something that cannot be said of the sound broadcasters. Whenever the shahs of radio enlist the famous names of the theater they pay dearly for the experience. The famous names demand—and receive—salaries that would even raise the eyebrows of a steel company's directorate. When the television knock comes they are ready and eager to strut their stuff for the publicity that is in it.

* * *

Publicity, did we say? Well, after all, that covers only a part of it. They are not so dumb in a business sense as they often appear to be. By saying "yes" to the television tetrarchs, while television is generally in an experimental state, they are obtaining an intimate insight into their future status as entertainers. They are willing to sacrifice time and labor and money to obtain this insight. And you can't blame 'em.

* * *

Television is going to revolutionize their world. It is going to turn it upside down. And the wisest among them are going to be ready for the call when it comes—ready not only with voices long trained to public appearance but with personalities which through the years have meant heavy sugar to them.

* * *

The majority of them missed the opportunity of getting in on the ground floor of broadcasting in the early days of radio. They were told, and believed it, that radio was a passing fad, that it would never become a dominant part of show business. They continued their labors in the Broadway vineyards, with eyes turned hopefully only to Hollywood.

* * *

Meanwhile, a horde of obscure and unknown entertainers were perfecting themselves in the broadcasting technique. Today the once obscure and unknown are the bigtimers of radio, and the great names of the stage are merely occasional guest stars.

The great names don't intend to be caught napping again. Hence their stampede to the television gates.

Cohen, of Uniontown, which took place in the urban room of the William Penn Hotel on Sunday. The ceremony took place before an improvised altar of cibotium ferns, crotons and tall standards of calla lilies, supplemented by cathedral tapers in candelabra.

Married Sunday

The bride wore a gown of Brussels lace appliqued on chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of Madonna lilies. The veil of lace and tulle cascaded from a coronet of lace caught with orange blossoms. Miss Anne Rosenstein, maid of honor, wore a gown of salmon pink thread lace, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas Silverblatt, sister of the bride, wore beige lace appliqued on net. Another sister, Mrs. Alfred Arfield, wore aquamarine eyelet lace. All carried sheafs of Pargny roses, orchid sprays and delphinium.

Morton Leroy Silverblatt, nephew of the bride, was a page, and Milton Cohen was his brother's best man. Serving as ushers were two brothers of the bride, Eli and Theodore Levy; Gene Strauss, Harry Feinstein, Lou Sapolsky, Henry Rothenberg, all of Pittsburgh; George Scheff, of Uniontown, and Bernard Pitkin, of New York.

After a reception in the urban room, a buffet supper was served to 500 guests in the silver room.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen sailed from New York Monday for Havana, and will make their home in Uniontown when they return.

WOOL FROCKS FOR SUMMER AFTERNOONS AND SPORTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 20.—Strands of wool are deftly woven into the rich tapestry of the mode. Even though we are fast approaching summer, wool suits and frocks are still worn by the smartest women. The wool is of a light weight and texture and makes up beautifully. Then, too, for sports wear, nothing seems to be smarter than the suit of hand-knit wool, a costly fashion of course, yet essentially a simple one. It needs the most expert workmanship to give the right "hang" and appearance to the knitted suit, otherwise the result is a sorry looking affair. The knitted wool suit is beloved of the younger generation. It is ideal for walking and for sports wear. The light weight wool frock for afternoon wear is still much seen here in most intriguing versions of this interesting but radical departure from the material world.

* * *

THE DRAWING TODAY certainly glorifies wool, as both suits are made of it. The suit to the left, sketched in the Bois, is in a soft woolen fabric, somewhat resembling cheviot, but of lighter weight, and the color is a silvery green. The little jumper-like jacket buttons to the throat and the standing collar buttons to one side. Flaring panels set in at the front of the skirt give a slight width to the straight lines.

* * *

THE OTHER MODEL shows a smart knitted suit for sports wear. Hand-knit in heavy navy blue wool, it has a turned-down collar and flaring cuffs and peplum, these touches creating a jaunty and youthful little jacket. The skirt is formed of slightly flaring panels bordered with a horizontal band at the lower edge. The belt of this smart ensemble by Hermes is of dark blue leather.

SCHOOLEY SEES WHARF SAVING

That the city will be able to save a substantial sum at the wharf parking stations by reducing the operating force and using more efficient methods of collection, is the opinion of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley.

A report for City Council is being prepared by Schooley making recommendations in regard to management of the wharves. He believes the payroll may be cut 40 per cent and that a modern system of collection should be adopted.

He is against spending a large amount of money at the wharves until permanent improvement can be made. In the meantime, he believes that parts of the wharf which are in bad condition should be repaved and that fence should be erected to control exits.

Those Schoolboy Howlers

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Literary weevils are making a great honking and wailing of intellectual foghorns over the written boner. The boner is an erroneous answer to some silly question that a professor thinks up when he has little to do.

Over in England these schoolboy boners are known as howlers. When teacher gets a howler in an examination paper she scrams with good old British delight and calls in all the other professors. They read the howler and whoop themselves to a blistering academic froth.

"Ain't our pupils dumb?"

But the real truth is that the dumb pupils make these howlers and boners on purpose. They like to hear their teachers laugh and love to see them dance on aching feet.

We did the same thing when we went to school. Why should any school kid be made to parse an isthmus? Why should he be compelled to dissect the least common denominator of a bowl of clam chowder?

If he guesses right what does it mean? It doesn't change the betting. And when a kid says a peninsula is a neck of land without a collar he is doing it with malice prepaid.

When a class in history decides that Othello the Moor stuffed a pillow in Desdemona's face and sophisticated her, that's okay, too. The boys know that she was suffocated. But there is no doubt that she was also slightly sophisticated.

And since all this publicity started no school kid tries to guess any answer right. He tries to get it wrong so he will become famous as the boy who said that America was discovered by a town in Ohio, that a toga was a Japanese admiral and that Patrick Henry didn't have any last name.

Real Estate

The Bell Tailoring Company has leased from Daniel Makrauer the store and basement at 134 Sixth street for a term of years. After extensive alterations the store will be open. The Horner Real Estate Company, represented by C. H. Horner, closed the lease.

A three-story brick building at Broad street and Pacific avenue housing a storeroom and two apartments has been conveyed by I. L. Shapiro to Mrs. Sarah J. Regan in exchange for two storerooms and apartments at 2944 and 2846 Penn avenue, according to C. C. Hamilton, downtown realtor.

The Broad street property, on a lot measuring 30x90 feet, was held for $17,000. The Penn avenue property, the realtor says, was valued at $14,000. The difference was paid in cash.

A larg home on lot 57x121 feet at 224 South Negley avenue has been sold by Otto Bonitz to Joseph M. Werner through the offices of Huss Brothers, East Liberty realtors. A two-car garage is on the rear of the property.

The same realtors have sold a new brick home at 1935 Remington drive, Wilkinsburg Manor, new East End residential development, to George W. Lewis. The purchaser is occupying the home. A building lot in the same plan has been sold by Huss Brothers to O. H. Cannon. Plans for a home are being made by Cannon, the realtors report.

Air Fighting Forces Here Lagging in World Race

—By Gen. Wm. Mitchell—

(Former Commander Air Forces A. E. F. and Director Military Aeronautics U. S. Army.)

DAYTON, O., May 20.—A modern air force is composed of different branches, just as an army is made up of infantry, cavalry and artillery, and a navy of battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. An air force has two principal arms, bombardment and pursuit.

Bombardment aviation is designed to carry the heaviest missiles to the targets they are intended to destroy. The larger bombardment airplanes can carry up to 8,000 pounds of bombs. They are equipped with supercharged engines, which will take them up to 30,000 feet altitude, at speeds around 180 miles per hour.

It is a serious question now whether there can be any defense against a well-planned air attack of a great power. The thing to do is to hit them first. The weapons used are explosives, gas, machine guns and cannon. Gas may be sprayed, dropped in bombs or laid in curtains surrounding a city, an army or a fleet.

* * *

Bombs may be dropped from the bombardment airplanes, or they may be projected from the air torpedo, which is really a small airplane guided by gyroscopic control and maneuvered by radio. One of these air torpedoes could be sent across the Atlantic. There is also a gliding bomb which has wings and is dropped from the airplane.

There are only 36 bombardment planes for duty with the air division. These have a maximum speed of about 130 miles per hour, a ceiling of about 16,000 feet, a carrying capacity of 4,000 pounds and a cruising range of only seven or eight hundred miles. We are terribly weak and deficient in this type of airplane.

Pursuit aviation is designed to pursue enemy airplanes, bring them to battle and destroy them. They are the fastest, most maneuverable and most effectively armed ships possible to produce. The best of our American pursuit airplanes have about 180 miles speed, a ceiling of about 30,000 feet and two guns, one of .50 caliber and one .30 caliber. Foreign service planes have speeds of 200 miles or over, ceilings of thirty to thirty-five thousand feet and carry from four to six guns. Of the best class of pursuit planes actually in the hands of our air troops, we have only about 116 ships.

* * *

The other branches of aviation are auxiliaries. We created attack aviation during the latter part of the European war for the purpose of attacking troops, trains, airdromes or objects on the ground. This branch of aviation has not been developed to any extent by Europeans since the war, for the reason that they consider the principal objective of air attack will be far inside the enemy's lines; his cities, manufacturing areas and communications. The planes with which our attack group is equipped are merely obsolescent two-seater observation ships carrying six guns, light bombs and have some gas projecting apparatus. They can in no way be considered fit for modern wars.

* * *

Another auxiliary branch of aviation is called observation. It is designed to reconnoiter the enemy's territory, find out what his dispositions are, either on the ground or in the air, where his vulnerable points are and then report this back by radio. Whenever an army has anything to do with the handling of an air force, it always provides for a tremendous excess of observation airplanes for its own domestic use. This makes them useless for an air force that has to get in its punch against the enemy.

Of the 613 airplanes with squadrons in the air divisions, there are 274 observation planes, 51 attack that are observation types, and 51 transports, or 379 auxiliary ships, leaving only 234 for offensive operations, less than half.

* * *

Our observation airplanes are deficient in speed and ceiling. No matter how reliable an airplane may be or how safe for its occupants in time of peace, if it has not characteristics superior to those of the enemy, it will be quickly disposed of in war.

The reason our equipment is so deficient is because we do not have a single department of air and a united air force. Should we have to engage in a great war, as in 1917, we would again have to rely on foreigners for the best types of military planes.

Up to the time we sank the battleships in 1922 and proved that surface warships were obsolete, we had been allowed to develop our aviation without much interference from the Army and Navy. From our experience in the war, we had laid out a program of technical development which would have carried us far ahead of any other nation. We had gained every record in the world. Our men had flown around the world. We were going ahead so fast that the politicians, in the Navy especially, and in the Army, determined to put a stop to our rapid development as it was quickly placing the Navy in a very subordinate position. Through political manipulation, aviation was turned over to the politicians, with the result that it was at a dead stop for several years.

Now it is being picked up again slowly about where it left off, but we have lost 10 years.

Six years ago, due to our efforts to change aviation, we forced a five-year program through Congress. This provided for 1,800 airplanes. The five years are now up and it has not been half carried out.

FIREWORKS BAN BACKERS HIT NEW PLAN

Garland, Anderson Declare Measure Will Not Halt Menace to Children

Pittsburgh's new fireworks ordinance, expected to be passed next Monday, and which was opposed by civic associations and parents, will not reduce the hazard of deaths from pyrotechnics in the least, Councilmen Charles Anderson and Robert Garland said today.

Anderson said:

"Mr. Garland's measure which would abolish fireworks from the city was one sponsored by mothers and civic associations. It would prevent future deaths from gunpowder on July 4."

Garland said:

"The new ordinance, against which I voted, merely curtails the sale of the most dangerous kinds. A small sparkler or firecracker can cause a death just as easily as a big cannon cracker."

Council's Committee on Finance passed the regulation ordinance yesterday. It was sponsored by President John S. Herron, the Department of Public Safety and dealers.

Fireworks to be banned under the proposed legislation are gunpowder bombs, revolvers, blank cartridges, balloons carrying burning materials, large rockets and roman candles, toy cannons using gunpowder, and torpedoes more than four inches in length, three-quarters inch outside diameter and having more than two grains of gunpowder.

Under the measure payment of a $50 license fee to the Bureau of Building Inspection by June 15 of each year is required. Fireworks can be retailed only between June 25 and July 5.

No child under 12 years of age is permitted to purchase fireworks.

Establishments where pyrotechnics are on sale must have adequate fire protection and must install fire extinguishers.

Penalty for failure to observe requirements of the ordinance would be $100 fine or 30 days in the Allegheny County Workhouse.

YOUNG LAWYERS DEFEND NEEDY

A score of "public defenders"—young lawyers who have volunteered to defend prisoners unable to hire attorneys—stood before Presiding Judge George V. Moore, in Criminal Court this morning, and were assigned cases which they will try next week.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Judge Moore recently worked out a plan of taking what they term "the Sunday census" in the jail, and the assignment of "public defenders" is a step in the plan.

Each Sunday morning jail clerks pass cards to the prisoners held for trial, unable to get bail. On the cards the prisoners state whether they wish to plead guilty or stand trial, and if they have money with which to pay a lawyer.

Recently Judge Moore recruited a number of young attorneys who are willing to be appointed, without pay, to defend the unfortunates for the experience. The plan has speeded up work in the court.

Avery Fails to Tell His Dad Why He Returned Home From School

CHAPTER XII.

For several years now, Rarick had been cultivating this habit of extricating himself from his office at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

As a matter of fact, it was Rarick's conclusion that these few precious hours of late afternoon which included the sedative one of twilight, if properly induced, could be made to stack upon the credit side of health and vitality.

His golf consisted of those hours spent in the forest-like silences of his library, where he read little, if at all, but where glyphs and triptychs, "Virgin and Child," Auvergne art of the fifteenth century, pillars of stone decorated in Roman cups, red velvets inlaid with heraldic leopards, played effect after effect into his solitude.

Out of his organ, "Father's Folly," there came pouring to his pressing of a button the storied action of "Tosca" or "La Boheme," told in the illuminated stained glass above the triple grin of keyboards. Musical cataracts that leaped in glory over the din of a day that had been lived to the tune of dishpans, hair nets, lingerie ribbon and 40,000 small dolls made out of imitation peach skin from the Vermont factory.

Countless devices lurked within the Gothic maw of his pretentious instrument. Symphony orchestras, Japanese bells, xylophones, bird notes and cymbals. Violin solos, sextets, octets, "Chimes of Normandy," Bach, Verdi, Guilmant, Handel, Saint-Saens, Bonne, Mendelssohn and a reproduction of the vatican choir, with the lifted faces of the singing boys rising chasely above their surplices and glowing softly into stained-glass flesh.

Sees His Son

To Rarick, who scarcely knew his son, there was something of Avery in these pale soprano boys, a look of spiritual contact, until he invariably jerked himself away from a comparison that no sooner made, seemed ridiculous.

Avery, indeed! Speedboats. Rius-fours. Oriental pearl studs at 17. A growing suspicion that all was not open and above board about his college had been Rarick's.

Synopsis

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2,500, all she had, when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. Rarick buys a magnificent home, but secretly finds himself hating his wife. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects, and a bitter scene follows, in which Rarick delivers the ultimatum that Gerkes remain. He sends for Jennifer and compels her to cancel a dinner engagement to dine with Gerkes. Jennifer finds him interesting. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon, a youthful gigolo. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Avery is afraid to make the request of his father.

SCHOOL BONDS APPROVED

Bond issues for the building of a new high school at Springdale and a four-room addition to the Gregg street school at Glendale, Scott Township, were voted at elections held yesterday.

At Springdale, where overcrowding has necessitated teaching of children in two shifts, it was voted to erect a new $150,000 high school. The building will contain 16 rooms and a gymnasium seating between 800 and 1,000, it was said.

Relief from overcrowding at the Gregg street school in Glendale, where the overflow is being taught in Glendale chapel, was voted in a $30,000 four-room addition to the school.

PRO BE CLARK'S PLEA FOR BOAT

Fearing that a motorboat asked by the Police Bureau might be wanted for pleasure purposes, Council's Committee on Public Safety yesterday laid the request over for further information.

Public Safety Director James M. Clark asked for the boat Monday.

Councilman W. Y. English said:

"We don't know what the boat is going to be used for. Let's hold the thing up till we find out whether its for business or pleasure."

Specifications on the craft provide a speed of 35 miles per hour.

CONFECTIONER ACCUSED BY MOTHERS

Arrested as Parents Complain That Pupils Bought Gin And Whisky in Store

The complaint of mothers that their schoolgirl daughters were buying gin and whisky at a Hill confectionery brought Don Picciani, 28, of 2006 Watson street, into Center Avenue Police Station today. He was held for court.

Although silent at the hearing, following it Picciani said on several occasions young girls came to his store to hold parties. He said he did not know they were school girls, and denied he sold them liquor.

Capt. John Schnurr told Magistrate Rothenberg at the hearing that many women in the vicinity complained that their children were buying liquor at Picciani's confectionary, and that last night police conducted a raid on the store. He said they confiscated moonshine and gin.

Picciani, when asked by Rothenberg if the charges were true, did not reply.

He was held on a charge of violating the Snyder Act and bail was set at $1,000.

Vice Near Hill Schools Termed Menace to Pupils

Conditions near schools in Pittsburgh's Hill district, especially near the Franklin School, Epiphany street, were deplored today by Mrs. Allena G. Stuhlfire, secretary of the Board of School Visitors for the Third Ward.

Citing the prevalence of "numbers" writers, beer flats and other places of vice in the vicinity of the Franklin School, Mrs. Stuhlfire appealed to citizens of the ward for aid in correcting conditions there. Turned from school out into the streets, with nowhere else to play, she said, the children are particularly exposed to evil temptation and contact with the worst influences.

Mrs. Stuhlfire said:

"Franklin schoolchildren have no playground. The Board of Education has supplied two training rooms, where they can play during recess or take gym exercise. Fresh air is out of the question.

"Other schools in the ward are somewhat better off. On the whole, however, the child living in the Third Ward is hampered in his growth, is exposed to temptation from one day's end to another. Conditions of health and morals are deplorable."

Settlement Worker Praises Campaign For Cleanup of Eyesores on 'Hill'

Leader in Fight for Better Living Conditions Lauds Sun-Telegraph

Praise for the Sun-Telegraph's efforts and those of city officials to make Pittsburgh a cleaner and more attractive city has been voiced by Sidney A. Teller, superintendent of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement who for many years has been fighting for better housing conditions in the hill district.

Teller said city officials have done everything which they can do with the means at their command, but have often been hampered by lack of legislation or insufficient help. Tenements which were protested by Teller as unsanitary in 1907 are still standing and are occupied.

POOR CONDITIONS

... of the buildings which ... appearance to the com... are technically within the ... ater hydrants used by a ... number of persons, outside water closets and basement living quarters are found in a number of places in the hill.

In some of the poorer houses, tenants are out of work and are not paying rent. City sanitary inspectors say that if bad sanitary conditions are reported, the owner's first course is to put the tenants out. The inspectors for that reason prefer to persuade tenants to clean up their premises on their own account.

ASH REMOVAL PROBLEM

Disposal of ashes is a particular problem. The city has no contract with the American Reduction Company for their removal. It must be handled in some way by the property owner or tenant. Every cleanup campaign has seen barrels of ashes in back yards with no way to get them to a dump.

T. L. Pillow, superintendent of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, says he will be glad to give immediate attention to every case where rubbish is reported on a city street. City property at Webster avenue and Crawford street which is piled with rubbish will be cleaned, and conditions under the Manchester Bridge ramp at the Exposition Building investigated.

FIGHT UNSAFE PLACES

The campaign against dangerous buildings is going ahead in the Bureau of Building Inspection. Photographs of a number of houses which have been pronounced a menace to the public will be taken Thursday under the direction of J. C. Duffy, inspector, and legal steps started for their removal.

A number of buildings which are safe structurally are a menace from the standpoint of fire and sanitation. Inspectors have notified the Fire Prevention Bureau of the condition of two storerooms at 706 and 715 Wylie avenue, in both of which windows are out.

BOYS' SCHOOL PLAN STUDIED

The property committee of the McKeesport School Board at a meeting of the board last night, withdrew its motion that a $600,000 trade school for boys only be erected. The withdrawal came after a three-hour debate.

It was said that at first the board concurred in the motion but that later Dr. H. S. Arthur objected on the ground that it was equally important to have a trade school for girls.

E. M. Mack's motion for a study of a trade school that would care for 1,800 boys, the anticipated enrollment, was finally approved with the amendment by Dr. Arthur that a study of a school for 250 girls also be made.

Contracts for the building of the Eleventh and Ninth Ward schools were awarded to the low bidder. The cost will amount to about $150,000, it was said. Twenty-seven teachers were also appointed.

Still and Liquor Seized by Raiders

A 30-gallon still, four barrels of mash and 10 gallons of moonshine were reported confiscated by prohibition agents late yesterday when they raided the home of Joe Gerbach, 36, at 709 Reynolds street, Portvue. Gerbach was released on his own recognizance.

CAUFFIEL ASKS CLEMENCY

HARRISBURG, May 20.—(AP.)—Former Mayor Joseph Cauffiel, of Johnstown, ousted from office on charges of misdemeanor in office and conspiracy, through his attorney today was to ask the State Board of Pardons for commutation of his sentence.

In addition to the former Mayor's plea the board was to hear the applications of seven first degree slayers, 10 second degree murderers and 20 others involving less serious offenses.

Cauffiel seeks clemency on the grounds that he is innocent of the crimes for which he was convicted and that even if he were guilty he has been punished sufficiently for such offenses.

TOWNSHIP ROAD CARE BY STATE OPPOSED

Directors of Motor Club Say Secondary Highways Should First Be Improved

Opposition to assumption of responsibility by the State Highway Department for maintenance of 20,000 miles of township highways was voiced last night by the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

Members of the club advocated the adoption of rural highways as the secondary system of the department, but opposed state responsibility for maintenance of highways before they are improved.

It was declared 6,000 miles of township highways have been improved, and that the club believes the state should take immediate charge of maintenance of these roads.

Rural roads not yet improved, but a part of the 20,000-mile secondary system, should be kept up by townships and municipalities, it was said at the meeting.

Recommendations voted were for adoption of 20,000 miles of township highways as the secondary highway system of the state; the taking over and maintenance of the 6,000 miles of those highways already improved; the taking over and improving of as many miles of township highways as can be constructed, reconstructed or improved, with funds allocated for this purpose by the Legislature and the maintenance of roads included in the 20,000 miles to be added to the secondary system, by the municipalities until the highways department is able to improve them.

STATUE HONORS BENEDICTINE

LATROBE, Pa., May 20.—A bronze statue of the Rt. Rev. Boniface Wimmer, O. S. B., founder and first abbot of St. Vincent archabbey, Latrobe, which arrived at St. Vincent in February from Rome, is the work of Ferdinando Seeboeck, a Viennese sculptor living in Rome. The statue is 11½ feet high, weighing 3,800 pounds. It will be erected in front of the archabbey church.

Unveiling was tentatively scheduled to take place on commencement day, June 9, but delay in getting foundation stone postponed it.

So far as known there is only one monument to Boniface Wimmer, which is in his home town, Thalmassing, in Bavaria, erected long ago.

The monument at St. Vincent will have particular significance to the American Benedictine Cassinese Congregation, which springs from the original foundation of St. Vincent. There are now 14 abbeys, all with schools, preparatory colleges and colleges.

The Rt. Rev. Wimmer was born in Thalmassing, Bavaria, January 14, 1809. He was ordained a priest July 31, 1831, and made his solemn religious profession of vows as a Benedictine monk December 29, 1833. He was made abbot on September 17, 1855. He founded St. Vincent on the present site in 1846.

No word has been received.

IDENTIFY THREE IN DEATH TRIAL

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 20.—(AP.)—Two commonwealth witnesses yesterday identified three Allegheny County youths as those who held up the roadside stand on the Irwin-McKeesport, when Francis J. McGreevy, its proprietor, was slain the night of February 27.

The three, John Greenwalt, Pittsburgh; Paul E. Boggs, East Pittsburgh, and Russell Wentz, Wilkinsburg, are on trial here, charged by the state with first degree murder.

John A. Kegler, North Huntington Township, and his wife, testified they were with McGreevy at the time of the holdup. Both pointed to Greenwalt as the man who threatened McGreevy with a pistol while the other two, whom they also identified, waited outside. They said they did not see the shooting but heard the shot.

40-8 CHIEF PAYS VISIT HERE

Charles E. Perry, of Kittery, Me., national commander of the Forty and Eight Society of the American Legion, today paid his first official visit to the Pittsburgh organization, the second largest in the United States.

In an interview Mr. Perry stressed the need of a standing army and navy. He said:

"I think we need a standing army. We need a proper navy badly. I think the time is far distant when the nations of the world will throw away arms. The United States should have every ounce of protection permitted by the last arms conference."

Speaking of child welfare, to which a large portion of the dues of the organization go, Mr. Parry said:

"We must educate the child if we are going to combat communism."

Mr. Perry was the guest at a luncheon of the local organization in the William Penn Hotel. Tonight he will attend an initiation in Natrona.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness — revived colors — all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method of adding Energine to soapy water the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

STATE BACK 137 YEARS—DREYFUSS

THOUGH THE MOVEMENT to legalize Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania has been rendered unsuccessful by the decision of the Senate Law and Order Committee to postpone indefinitely action on the Denning optional bill previously passed by the House, the fight will go on with victory in 1933 or later as the goal, according to President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh club. "I am disappointed at the outcome, as I had felt that the people could not in fairness be denied the right to say what they wanted," said the owner of the Pirates.

Barney Dreyfuss

"However, I mean to keep on fighting all my life, if necessary, provided I feel assured that the people want Sunday ball, and right now I have no doubt that they do. If the people want it, they will co-operate in the effort to get it. If they don't want it, the Pittsburgh club will bow to their will. The game belongs to them, though some of our legislators appear not to think so.

"IT SEEMS TO ME," the local magnate continued, "that in the killing of the bill Pennsylvania has gone back 137 years to 1794 and has taken Pittsburgh back that far along with it. The most disappointing feature is not the failure of the Sunday ball movement itself, but the fact that the citizens of the various parts of the commonwealth have been denied the right of expressing their will. Surely they should be entitled to that privilege, and it is a queer sort of democracy that denies them the opportunity.

"The Pittsburgh club must continue to play under a handicap that affects its pennant chances vitally every year. Under existing conditions, the Pirates, prohibited from playing at home on Sundays, must make many more railroad jumps and travel many more thousands of miles than any other club in the National League in order to keep up with the schedule by playing in other cities on Sundays. Jumping to another town for Sunday after a Saturday game here, and then jumping back again to play here on Monday, takes a lot out of a club for two games in each instance and keeps it from doing its best."

IT MAY NOT be necessary after all for the Pirate management to ship Pitcher Charley Wood back to the minors, temporarily, as was planned, for the purpose of enabling that young southpaw to find himself after a series of disappointing spring performances.

According to Scout Bill Hinchman, who has had Wood and the other Pirate stay-at-homes in charge during the daily workouts at Forbes Field, the lefthander has improved greatly in from, has recovered much of the control and speed which he lacked earlier in the season, and may prove himself worthy of a further trial.

WORD FROM PHILADELPHIA, after the Pirate defeat in the opening game of the series there, that Manager Jewel Ens planned to bench not only Bill Regan but Tommy Thevenow as well, and to use Jim Mosolf and Ben Sankey in the infield in the hope of bracing the offensive, caused no surprise among the home fans. It was only a question of time until Ens would have to make some kind of shakeup in view of the feeble hitting of the Bucs, who made only 10 runs and 27 hits in the last four games. Thevenow, in particular, has been punchless. He failed to make a hit in the last six games and batted safely in only five of the last 20 contests. Recent defeats cannot be laid at the door of the Pirate pitchers, as their work in the main has been of a high order. In only one game of the last seven up to today, that being the 9-to-2 affair in Boston Saturday, did they allow more than three runs.

Eddie Votel

IN PICKING A mythical all-star five-man bowling team for Cincinnati and vicinity, Harry Yockey, who experts in that sport for the Cincinnati Enquirer, named as his first selection Eddie Votel, formerly of East Pittsburgh and national singles champion with 731 in 1926.

"We have no means of knowing really how good Votel is because of his habit of coasting when his team is in no danger," Yockey comments. "But when the game tightens up and Eddie really bears down, watch the maples fly. He is the only Cincinnati bowler who has shot more than one 300 score. In fact, he has shot seven or eight perfect games."

THE MEN WHO manufacture most of the bats used by major league players say that in recent years nearly all of the big loopers have gone in for a reduction in the size of their bludgeons. Players who used to swing bats weighing 42 to 44 ounces now handle sticks that weigh only 33 to 38 ounces.

That, as well as the lively ball and small parks, has been a factor in the increased hitting in late years, they say, causing the sphere to shoot through the infield with greater momentum and to take longer flights into the outfield. The hitters discovered they could swing light bats much faster than heavy ones.

"There was a time when we couldn't make a bat heavy enough for Babe Ruth," a manufacturer says. "But later he began to ask us to cut down the weight and now he is swinging a 39-ounce club. Al Simmons, of the A's, uses the longest stick handled by any big league player. His bat measures 37 inches (the legal limit is 42) and weighs 37 ounces. Chuck Klein does his hitting with 36 ounces of wood and so do Lou Gehrig and Gabby Hartnett. Rogers Hornsby uses bats of three weights, 36, 37 and 38 ounces. Paul Waner swings a 39-ounce club. Jimmy Foxx, Bill Terry and Mel Ott have 38-ounce bats, while Hack Wilson and Jim Bottomley usually order sticks of 37 ounces."

WHEN JACK JOHNSON, former world heavyweight champion, landed in Los Angeles the other day he found that he had picked an ideal spot for a renewal of old fistic relations. It was there that the big Negro, almost 30 years ago, fought Sam McVey, Denver Ed Martin and others in laying the foundation for his championship career.

Johnson ran into many of his early ring acquaintances. There were Frank Moran, former Pittsburgher, who fought Jack in Paris in 1914; Jim Jeffries, whom the Negro knocked out in 1910; Jess Willard, to whom Johnson lost the title in 1915; Tom Kennedy, Jack's former sparring partner; Watson Burns, his trainer from 1910 to 1912, and Lou Houseman, who witnessed the signing of the Jeffries-Johnson articles.

MORAN AND JOHNSON wished each other luck in the matter of eventually collecting the money for which they fought in Paris almost 17 years ago. The moratorium was declared almost the day they met.

They never collected their purse except for some advance money received by Johnson. Moran went to Europe a year ago to learn what could be done toward the collection of the money, which was impounded, but nothing came of it.

Jack Johnson

FRANK HOPES SOME day to get his share of the purse, which, with interest, will approximate $50,000. Johnson also has a big chunk coming. Burns, Jack's old trainer, commented on the fact that the former champion, though 53, looks only 40. "Contrary to general opinion, Johnson was not a heavy drinker," Burns said. "In those days when champions signed for a fight it was customary to celebrate the occasion with a champagne party, but Johnson could keep one glass of champagne bubbling all night." While in Los Angeles Johnson led the orchestra at a Negro ball, and the hall was hardly large enough to hold the couples eager to dance to music directed by the former champion.

LAST AMERICAN HOPE LOSES, 1 DOWN

WESTWARD Ho! DEVON, England, May 20.—(AP.)—George Voight, of New York, last American contender, was eliminated today in the fifth round of the British amateur golf championship by Syd Roper, English star, by a margin of 1 up.

Voight had won his morning match from Bernard Darwin, London writer-golfer, 3 and 2, and had Roper 2 down at the end of the first nine.

The young insurance clerk who took Bobby Jones to the sixteenth hole last year at St. Andrews, with Jones playing sub-par golf, evened the match on the eleventh green and from there to the finish it was nip and tuck.

AGONIZING FINISH

It was an agonizing finish for the American, who saw his two-hole lead vanish at the first two holes of the last nine, got a hole back at the twelfth, lost it at the sixeenth and then took a shaky 6 at the home hole to lose the match.

All square at the eighteenth tee, Voight hit a fine drive, but failed to carry a big water-filled ditch with his second iron and had to drop another ball. Roper, in the meantime, had sent his second straight for the pin, and with only a five-foot putt to go, Voight hit his fourth too hard and it rolled over the green into short rough. When his recovery also failed of the green he laid his arm on Roper's shoulder and shook his hand in congratulation. The cards:

Out—
Voight	4	4	5	4	4	4	4	3	5	—	37
Roper	5	4	4	5	4	5	4	3	5	—	39
In—
Voight	5	5	4	4	3	4	4	5	6	—40—	37—77
Roper	4	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	4	—36—	39—75

Out—
Voight	5	4	5	4	3	4	5	4	4	—38
Darwin	5	5	5	4	3	5	4	4	5	—40
In—
Voight	4	3	4	5	4	5	3
Darwin	4	4	5	5	4	4	5	3

Voigt fell two rounds shy of his place last year, when he went to the semi-finals only to lose to Jones by the same margin as Roper defeated him today.

LAST U. S. HOPE

George had trouble in his previous four rounds at the tenth and eleventh and those two holes today proved his undoing. The tenth, a 354-yarder, is a dog-leg around a sea of rushes and the eleventh requires accurate shooting down the fairway with the spear-tipped bull rushes on either side, waiting for the careless golfer. Voigt drove into the rushes on both holes and although he got out both times could not catch the accurate-shooting Roper.

The amateur cup, which Jones took home last year for its third trip across the Atlantic, is sure to stay in British hands this year as all foreign threats have been removed.

The only Americans ever to win the British amateur have been Walter J. Travis, and Jess Sweetser and Jones.

Voigt was not the only victim of a surprise defeat. Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, former champions and favorites, passing out of the tournament with the New Yorker. Tolley was eliminated this afternoon by Capt. H. C. C. Tippett, 3 and 2, while Wethered was going down to defeat at the hands of William Tulloch, 1 up. Wethered was defeated by Jones in the final last year.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE UNIQUE "MAGANA"—The singular object known as the "Magana," or the "Clock of the Magician," consists of 13 carved beams, each supporting a bronze bowl projecting from the sculptured wall. Above there are 13 small windows from which hammers once were let down to strike the hours. The clock long has fallen silent, according to the popular Oriental legend, due to an evil spell cast upon it by the magician, Sidi Maimun. The Mohammedan religious day has 13 hours, which explains the unusual feature of the clock. Just the same, the old guardian of the Bou Ananiya, who in vain warned me of the still potent evil spell, declared with pride that the "Magana" has no equal in the universe. GEN. PICHEGRU—The French general, Charles Pichegru (1761-1804), who was a teacher of Napoleon I, for a whole year had only one hour of sleep a day (1792-93). This period coincides with Pichegru's campaign on the Rhine, when the exactions of the heroic campaign left the leader practically no time to sleep. Pichegru within a year was promoted to the rank of colonel, brigadier and general of division in rapid succession. THE SMALLEST FISH—The Pandaka pygmea fish, found in the creeks of the Philippine Islands, is probably the smaliest backboned creature known to science. It averages six-sixteenth of an inch in length, with a maximum length of seven-sixteenth of an inch. The small, slender body is transparent, and the eyes are the only visible features.

MRS. VAN RYN DEFEATED

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, AUTEUIL, France, May 20.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet, the world's ranking tennis player, today officially withdrew from the French hand court singles championship, leaving Jean Borotra as the main reliance of France to protect the title from the United States.

With Cochet out, George Lott, Jr., of Philadelphia, is conceded an excellent chance of meeting Borotra in the final.

Mrs. John Van Ryn, the former Midge Gladman, was eliminated from the women's doubles. Paired with Mme. Simonne Barbier, she was defeated by Mme. Sylvia Henrotin and Mme. Josane Sigart, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, now of England, but formerly of California, and Cilly Aussem, Germany's brilliant young tennis player, had a walk-over today.

George Lott, Jr., and Johnny Van Ryn, American favorites in the doubles championship, advanced into the quarter-final round by disposing of a stubborn pair of Frenchmen, Georges Glasser and Antoine Gentien, 6-1, 6-3, 11-13, 6-3.

Bucs Farm Jensen To Newark Club

The City League's sectional baseball campaign came to a close yesterday but before titles can be officially decided, playoff battles are going to be necessary. In the W. P. I. A. L., the defending champion, Scott, was knocked from the running and some advancement made toward placing teams in the semi-final round.

Westinghouse effected a deadlock in Section I, of the City League, by defeating Schenley, 6 to 3. A five-run attack in the second inning paved the way for the Silver Lakers' victory.

In the other Section I game, Peabody crushed Allderdice under a 17-5 score.

In Section II, it was popular for the losing side to score but one run. South Hills walloped Carrick's two no-hit, no-run hurlers, Kurtz and Kersting to win by a 7 to 1 score. Oliver eliminated Allegheny by the same count and Langley wound up its campaign by piling up a 22-1 score on hapless Vocational.

It will now be necessary for South Hills to meet Allegheny in a postponed game before a champion for the section can be decided. This game probably will be played Friday.

McKeesport, champion of Section V, of the W. P. I. A. L., eliminated Scott High, of North Braddock, in a inter-section battle at Pitcairn yesterday, 12-0; Bubrik, hurling for McKeesport, set the defending league champions down with two hits.

Beaver defeated Monaca to win the Section III toga, 10 to 4, and will meet Mt. Pleasant, of Section II, on Friday. The winner will play either McKeesport or McKees Rocks for the title.

In a Section I game yesterday, Dormont topped Mt. Lebanon, 9 to 5. Shady Side Academy nosed out Edgewood in an independent tussle yesterday, 3 to 2.

Other members of the group were Jimmy Jones, of Charleroi; M. R. McKinley, of Monongahela, and Dr. R. P. Kamerer, of Perryopolis. Par for the hole is three strokes.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Unless Manager Ens and his floundering Buccos want to slide ungracefully down into sixth place, which is generally designated as the "ruck," and have for playmates the lowly Robins and lower Cincinnati Reds, they will have to win today's ball game with the Phillies.

Yesterday, the Pirates were tagged with a 3-to-2 defeat by the Quakers. The result of the contest might have been different had the Pirates exhibited a bit of wallop when hits meant runs.

KREMER TO PITCH

Ens plans to shoot Remy Kremer against the Quakers today. The Phils expect to counter with youthful Stewart Bolen, lately of the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. Bolen is a southpaw, and southpaws have a habit of making it tough for the Buccos.

The threatened shakeup in the Bucco lineup, which was expected yesterday, may materialize today. Ens is pretty much disgusted with the tepid stickwork of his young men. As a remedy, he may bench Bill Regan, using Grantham at second and Jim Mosolf at first. Tommy Thevenow, who hasn't been hitting the size of his own or any one else's hat of late, may also ride the splinters, and Ben Sankey may get a chance to cavort in the short field.

Most of the scoring in yesterday's encounter was done in the first inning. The Pirates tallied when L. Waner, P. Waner and Grantham singled, L. Waner going over but an attempted double steal went haywire and Paul Waner was nabbed at third.

PHILS GET TWO

The Phillies got two in their half of the frame. Bartell doubled, scored on Klein's hot single and the slugging Chuck scampered over when Arlett whacked the center field wall with another double.

The Phils added their third run in the fourth. Hurst started it with a single. Whitney singled off French's glove and Hurst scored when Friberg punched a long fly to Paul Waner.

In the ninth, the Pirates put on a rally that resulted in one run going over and Jumbo Elliott going to the showers, but Ace Elliott put on the brakes and the ball game was over.

CHICAGO, May 20.—We are in Chicago for a spell so I took off my flannel underwear and am wearing my bullet-proof vest. They got a new mayor here since our last visit, but the beer is just the same. Tomorrow afternoon 500 airplanes will swoop over the city. That's all right with me if they don't mistake Comiskey's ball park for a landing field. Say, just train your micr oscope on this guy Ed Brandt that pitches for the Boston Braves. He has won six straight games this season, which is the equivalent of swimming up Niagara Falls when you consider the rest of the team.

SCORING HIGH IN P. G. A. TOURNEY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Stanton Heights and Alcoma golfers paced early finishers in the Pennsylvania Golf Association's inaugural one-day tournament of the season at the South Hills Country Club today.

The competition attracted 216 entries, but the scores will fall far short of that number, many contestants tearing up their cards when the figures reached too high a total to meet with their approval. Intermittent showers and a high wind made low scoring extremely difficult.

Prizes have been provided for the contestant turning in the low gross score, the low net score, and the winner and runner-up in the four ball best-ball against par competition.

In the low net race, Arch McGrew, of Stanton Heights, was the best of the early finishers with a 74, one stroke better than the total of F. A. H. Brandom, of Alcoma. In the low gross competition, Dr. C. S. Brandom, of Alcoma, took the lead with an 84. Arch McGrew and R. A. Coleman, the latter a Field Club representative, held Old Man Par even in the four ball best-ball against par event, and topped the list in this competition. The scores:

WOMEN BUSY

One of the biggest turnouts among women of the season was predicted for Allegheny today. Other competitions on the calendar are best-ball, two-ball matches for women at Valley Heights, and a nine-hole medal play for women at Chartiers Heights.

A two-ball mixed foursome event will be held at the Pittsburgh Field Club on Friday.

Stanton Heights Gold Club, as usual, is getting up a fine program for its golf and social life, while Leo Heyn at the Summit golf links, 1,500 feet above Uniontown, is anticipating an overflow crowd from this city for Saturday and Sunday.

Tomorrow St. Clair's women hold their opening competition, and a big day may be anticipated. Mixed foursomes for members are slated for Shannopin and a dinner match at Greensburg.

ALLEGHENY VICTOR

Two league affrays yesterday were run off among Section I and Section II women's teams of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania. At the Pittsburgh Field Club, beautiful at this time, Allegheny trimmed Shannopin, 5-2; Oakmont bumped Stanton Heights, 9-0, and the Field Club ousted Fox Chapel, 6-1, in Section I. The other group contesting, at Alcoma, was marked by the surprise victory of the new entry, Butler, in defeating St. Clair, 7-1. The Country Club bested Alcoma, 7-1, and Longue Vue won from Westmoreland by a close 5-4 margin.

John W. Carr, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Field Club, has announced that that club is soon to change its eighteenth hole. The tee is to be elevated about 11 feet, and the fairway will be made to dog-leg to the left just before it reaches the present putting green.

The hole will continue to the left for some 50 yards, the putting green being nestled in the side of the hill to the left of the veranda. This improvement is expected to make the Pittsburgh Field Club layout less tiring at the finish.

Quick Knockout In Amateur Bout

A 15-second knockout featured the amateur boxing show staged by the St. Philomena Men's Club last night. Five bouts were on the card.

Chick Rickett, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, drove a right to the chin of Steve Lilitoch, of the Valley Boxing Club, after 15 seconds of fighting in the first round and Lilitoch went down and out. The summary:

135-pound class—Harry Wilhelm, Valley Boxing Club, won from Joe Crawley, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds, decision. Johnny Hazel, Pittsburgh Lyceum, won from Dick Pritchard, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 4 rounds, decision.

DARO TO AID DEMPSEY

RENO, Nev., May 20.—(INS.)—Lou Daro, Los Angeles promoter, will join Jack Dempsey in promoting wrestling matches here, it was announced today. The first matches will be staged here on July 3, the night before the Max Baer-Paolino Uzcudun fight.

SOCCER BANQUET SET

Western Pennsylvania soccer teams will celebrate the close of a successful season with a banquet in the Roosevelt Hotel Saturday night. Dunlevy, Castle Shannon and Bridgeville will receive awards.

WILLOWS IN MEET

WATKINS AND SCHMIELER FIRST AND SECOND IN RACE

GENERALS TAKE M.-A. LEAD

Clarksburg's Generals advanced into full-fledged possession of first place in the Middle Atlantic League yesterday and the Johnstown Johnnies, which had been cutting a fine figure in the league race, slipped back into a four-way tie for third as a result of the Generals' 7-to-3 victory.

Cumberland, making hay while the sun shone and other leaders lost, slipped into second place by defeating Huntington, 5 to 0.

Joe Urinscho pitched good ball as the Generals defeated the Johnnies. He was touched for seven hits, but his team hit well behind him, getting 12 from Galehouse and Jones. Tamulis set Huntington down with four hits as the Colts won.

DIVIDE TWIN BILL

Beckley and Wheeling divided a closely-contested twin bill at Wheeling, Beckley took the first game, 3 to 2, and Wheeling the second, 5 to 4. Wheeling won the second game with only three safe hits.

Scottdale hammered out a 7-to-4 victory over Charleroi, Lee, hurling for the Scotties, fanned 11.

Hagerstown and Charleston split a double bill, the Maryland club winning the first game, 6 to 5, and Charleston taking the second, 12 to 4.

Fairmont turned the tables on Jeannette, winning, 12 to 8, in a slugfest. The Jays used four hurlers. Cousins went the route for the winners.

DAILY OPTIMISTIC

President Elmer Daily, of the Mid-Atlantic League, today took occasion to deny reports that the circuit is in bad shape financially and in danger of going on the rocks, with the West Virginia members forming a league of their own. With the solitary defection of the support of the Jeannette club, he said, the clubs and towns are in a fair way, and he is not pessimistic about the future.

The Jeannette franchise will be placed in another city at an early date. Meanwhile the club will be carried by the league as a traveling team.

TURNESA PADS GOLF LEAD

LEEDS, England, May 20.—(AP.)—Joe Turnesa, who led yesterday's qualifying round in the Leeds $5,000 professional golf tournament with a record 69, today duplicated the feat for a 36-hole total of 138 and a long lead among the early finishers.

In second place was Joe Kirkwood, the American, with 143, closely followed by Fred Robson, English Ryder Cupper, with 144, and the veteran Ted Ray with 145.

Horton Smith, who finished in a tie for third in the $7,500 Southport tournament last week, failed to qualify today, taking a 76 for a two-day total of 152.

HURLERS FIND BALL LIVELY

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP.)—American League pitchers, except for a few slow curve ball tossers, admit that the "deader" baseball is a pretty healthy sphere.

A comparison of records from the current American League campaign with those up to May 20, 1931, reveals that in five cases out of six the present ball has a livelier habit than the discarded ball of a year ago.

A year ago today, there were 15 games in which one team scored 10 runs or more a game. So far this season, there have been 21.

Last year at this time, there were 25 "big" innings in which a team scored five or more runs. To date in 1931, there have been four more.

PITT TRACKERS TOO POWERFUL FOR TECH

By JESS CARVER

An investigation is under way today to discover, if possible, just who was responsible for making Carnegie Tech a favorite over Pitt prior to the annual track and field clash between the rival institutions yesterday. The culprit, if and when he is apprehended, will be drawn, quartered and made to shell three bushels of corn while wearing boxing gloves.

Murray Armentrout

The press agents of the rival schools, never mind their names, sent out gobs and gobs of copy on the meet. Strangely enough, both predicted a Skibo victory. If I thought either of 'em had any dough, I'd be tempted to suspect them of putting over a betting coup.

It was Pitt's first win and Tech's second defeat of the season.

As it was, Pitt won both the varsity and freshman meets, hands down. Tech wasn't even close in either affair, and had it not been for a sparkling performance on the part of Tom Coulter, who won both hurdle events and set a Stadium record in the lows of :27.7, Tech would have been in very bad shape indeed.

UTTERBACK STAR

Capt. Everett Utterback, Pitt's Negro ace, although nursing a bum heel, was the individual star of the afternoon. He won the broad jump, tied for first in the high jump with a pair of teammates, took second in the pole vault and second in the hundred and was also second in the 220, but they disqualified him in the latter event because he strolled out of his lane.

Murray Armentrout, who took the hammer, was a post entry in the high hurdles, and what did the captain-elect, or captain-appointee of the Tartan football team do but haul down a third place in the timber-topping.

Pitt won all the track events save the hurdles, and in addition, cut in heavily on Tech's expected scoring advantage in the field. John Luch, the football fullbacker, played an important part in the confounding of old Carnegie.

MILLIGAN STARS

As for the freshmen, it was all Pitt. Milligan won both the dashes. Keller took the quarter and the half; Gay the two hurdles and Lawrence the mile. Keller ran the quarter in :49.6, about three seconds faster than Monheim could do in the varsity event.

MAX IS GUEST AT BANQUET

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., May 20.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, who defends his title against W. L. Stribling in Cleveland, July 3, will be the guest of honor at a banquet tonight, when he will be entertained by upwards of 200 business men and fans of Meadville and other towns in this district. A German menu is being prepared.

Schmeling and his staff arrived here last night. Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, said the champion would not take up serious training before May 28. The titleholder will spend his time golfing and resting, Jacobs said.

CUBS BECOME 'ROAST' OF CHI

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP.)—Chicago's Cubs, only a few weeks ago the toast of the city, today were the "roast" of the town.

They have failed dismally on their current road trip, and the fans, who started to forget all about Manager Joe McCarthy when they dashed away from the 1931 National League barrier like a Twenty Grand, are back booing and predicting all kinds of turmoil in the front office where Owner William Wrigley, Jr., dreams of the world's championship baseball team he says he and the fans of Chicago must have.

There is considerable doubt as to any turmoil in the Wrigley office today, but there isn't much doubt that Manager Rogers Hornsby would be called on to give his version of "what's wrong with the Cubs" when he confers with his chiefs Saturday.

The Rajah will bring his team, loser in six out of seven games so far on the eastern invasion, back to Chicago Saturday and will go into a huddle with the Cub bosses almost as soon as he returns.

As far as newspapermen traveling with the club can determine, rumors of personal disputes between the Rajah and his players have been as untrue as they have been numerous.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

"I'd like to see Battling Gizzy in there with that fellow."

That was the substance of the remarks of many of the fans as they filed out of the Meyers Bowl after seeing Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, maul his way to an easy decision over Ray Kiser, of Tulsa, Okla., in the main bout of the opening show in the North Braddock arena Monday night.

Battling Gizzy

The sentiment appears to be that Gizzy, with his free-swinging style of battling, would be the type that would give the British buzzsaw a lot of trouble.

Berg has the art of inside fighting down to a science. He walks in with both hands high and risks a crack on the chin to get on top of his opponent and then blazes away with both fists until he makes his man break ground. He is not a hard puncher, but he appears to be tireless and never backs up or ceases firing. He will beat badly any boxer from whom he is permitted to take away the play.

BERG TO RETURN

Gizzy never yet has been forced to fight in reverse in a bout here and should be ready for a test of the Berg sort.

Berg and his manager, Sol Gold, remained over in Pittsburgh yesterday and said they would be willing to return here again for a bout five or six weeks from now, when a battle with Gizzy may materialize to satisfy those fans who want "to see Gizzy in there with that fellow."

Between Rounds

John L. Hernon, manager of the Hickey Park arena, reports a lively interest in his opening show, tomorrow night, headed by Willie Davies and Jimmy Thomas, and, if the weather is good, he predicts the best gate of the arena's history.

Sammy Paris, of the Hill, who flashed a good comeback in beating Johnny Haggerty at Motor Square Garden recently, after a layoff of several months, has been working hard to regain his old fighting form and believes he is ready to tackle any of the local bantams. He would like to take on Jimmy Thomas, Mose Butch or any of the others. Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, is his new manager.

Mose Butch and Marty Gold fight the eight-round semi-final to the Davies-Thomas battle. Nordi Smith, Negro, of Newark, O., and Carl Montebano, Braddock middleweight, are in the second bout, and Terry Waner, of the North Side, meets Joey Katkish, of Lawrenceville, in the opener.

The amateur boxing show to be held under the auspices of the Ancritalia Club, in the Twenty-eighth Signal Corps Armory, East End, Friday night, will be featured by a heavyweight bout between Sparky Ewalt and Tom Hanson.

Benny Goldblatt, formerly of Chicago, now of Pittsburgh, will make his local ring debut against Angelo Verrigone, of Swissvale, in the second preliminary to the Buck McTiernan-TommyFreeman bout at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, and Johnny Montano, of Braddock, will meet Young Bordell, of New Kensington, in the opened. McTiernan and Freeman, by the way, are meeting at 154 pounds, give or take a pound, an easy weight for both.

Frank Stanley, of Washington, Pa., is managing Ralph (War Horse) Davis, 147 pounds, and Young Angelo, 126. Promoters may reach Stanley by calling Washington 2014-J.

Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, will meet Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, in the main bout of the second professional show in the Gallatin Gardens, Uniontown, Friday night. Eddie Hebner and Frankie Portland are in the semi-final, Carl Cesko and Silver Montini in the second bout and Bucky Turner and Carl Gross in the opener.

Umpire, Catcher Hurt at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 20.—(AP.)—Umpire C. B. Owens and Catcher Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, were injured by hit balls in the first inning of yesterday's encounter of the Yankees and the Indians.

Owens was hit on the arm by Morgan's single and was forced to go to the club house for treatment. Dickey was hit on the neck by a foul tip off Sewell's bat but was able to resume play after a short delay.

Rudolph Runs 125 To Win Cue Match

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP.)—Erwin Rudolph, Chicago pocket billiard star, ran out from spot in a 125-point pocket billiards game with Onofrio Lauri, of New York, yesterday, winning before his opponent had a chance to shoot.

Wes Fesler's Homers Bring O. S. U Victory

COLUMBUS, May 20.—(AP.)—Wesley Fesler accounted for nine runs as Ohio State defeated the Illinois team here yesterday, 10 to 5. Fesler hit two home runs with the bases loaded twice and added two two-base hits in five trips to the plate.

TARTAN, W.-J. NETMEN PLAY

Carnegie Tech's varsity tennis team leaves town today to meet Wash-Jeff's varsity racqueteers in a dual engagement at Washington, Pa. The Tartans, who were swamped by Pitt Monday, losing, 9 to 0, hope to make a more satisfactory showing against the Presidents.

Coach Hoover is not certain as to the lineup he will use against the Red and Black, but expects to make a shift or two from that that was employed against the Panthers.

GENEVA MEETS TITANS

In track, Geneva and Westminster, the two most powerful squads of the Tri-State Conference, clash in a dual meet at Beaver Falls. Geneva rules a strong favorite to defeat the Titans, due to having a better-balanced squad, but Westminster boasts a brace of sterling performers in Harry Brownlee and Capt. Lou Persyini. Brownlee runs the hurdles, throws the hammer, discus and javelin, and high-jumps.

St. Vincent's Bearcat baseball team seeks its seventh consecutive win as it meets Kiski at Saltsburg. Susquehanna plays Penn State at State College.

TARTANS TRY WRESTLING

Carnegie students will stage a wrestling tournament in the Tartan gymnasium this evening to determine whether or not there is sufficient interest in the mat game to cause its addition to the Plaid's program of intercollegiate sports.

The Duquesne University Student Managers' Association will hold a dinner in the University Cafeteria at 6 o'clock today. Appointments of managers in all sports for next year will be announced by Head Coach Elmer Layden, who is to preside at the dinner.

Entry List Grows For Auto Grind

Entries are coming in rapidly for the '30-mile automobile race to be held at the Monongahela City Speedway Memorial Day afternoon.

A number of local drivers will have cars entered in the long grind over the half-mile course, but the Pittsburghers will not have things their own way, for several well-known Ohio pilots have assured the promoters they will be on hand with their cars.

WARREN KNOCKED OUT

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP.)—Ralph Ficucello, Brooklyn heavyweight, stopped Add Warren, of Durham, N. C., in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden last night. Ficucello weighed 197, Warren 188.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

By Robt. Jones.

American Open, British Open, American Amateur and British Amateur Champion

I remember one night at the Marine Hotel in Gullane, Scotland, back in 1926, when the British amateur was being played at Muirfield, George Duncan was expounding to a few of us his latest theory of the golf swing. George expressed the belief that the most important part of the business was accomplished by the knees and feet. He described and illustrated for us how he was "playing golf with his feet;" the "take-off" from the left foot originating the motion of the backswing.

Bobby Jones

Without either subscribing to or denying the correctness of Duncan's ideas—indeed, I think they might be helpful to some as well as ruinous for others—it is safe to say that a great many players allow their feet to spoil too many shots. It is too easy to set down one foot in such a position that it will embarrass the stroke without being aware of the mistake until the swing has gotten under way, which is, of course, too late. A little more care in intelligently cultivating the habit of proper placing will be well rewarded.

And in this I am not speaking entirely of the location of the feet with respect to each other. Almost every one has found out that a more open stance—with right foot advanced—encourages a slice or fade, and that a closed stance—with left foot advanced is responsible for an opposite tendency. But the thing goes farther than that, to the placing of each foot upon the ground in the proper relation to the leg, the body and the swing.

HIPS SHOULD TURN

I may as well say right here that I am one of those who favor a very generous hip-turn. In my own swing, the hips turn during the backswing for a full shot through almost 90 degrees until my back is presented toward the hole. And then they turn through very fast in hitting. Now, there is only one way in which I can place my feet which will not cause one of them to hamper the hip-action going one way or the other. That is, each one must occupy approximately one position—each with the toe turned slightly outward so that the center line of each foot makes an angle of 15 or 20 degrees (no more) with a line drawn perpendicular to the line of flight. I find that this position can be altered a little bit for the right foot—it may even point directly forward, exactly across the line of flight—but that the placing of the left foot must be fairly definite.

To see why this is, one need only try a few swings with the left foot pointed toward the hole or in a pigeon-toed position. The first will be found to make impossible a free turn of the hips backward, while the second will interfere seriously with the turn through the ball.

DIEGEL EXCEPTION

It has been interesting to me, since hearing Duncan, to observe the way various players handle their feet and to note the relation of such handling to the rest of the swing. There is no need to set down any of these observations except to say that I have noted that everyone who makes a considerable use of his hips, in a turning action, places his left foot about as I do. Leo Diegel is the only exception I can recall off hand. Leo's left foot points almost squarely to the front as a rule, but I suspect that he finds the position a bit uncomfortable—at least, subconsciously—because as he hits the ball the foot almost invariably swings around more toward the hole.

HILL DISTRICT NINE TO PLAY RELIANCE

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

WEST PENN LEAGUE
Reliance Life at Marty Griffins.
CITY LEAGUE
Homewood at Dormont.
C. & I. LEAGUE
Rieck-McJunkins at Pittsburgh Coal.
STEEL CITY LEAGUE
DePasquale at D. J. Brodericks.

GREATER PITTSBURGH LEAGUE
Wilkinsburg Mars at Iroquois.

By TOM BIRKS

Two big opening celebrations in the West Penn and Commercial and Industrial leagues are on tap for this evening. The Marty Griffin club, of Herron Hill, under the wing of Alderman Marty Griffin and Davy Roberts and Gerry Americus, will play its first game as a member of the West Penn League. For the opposition, Hill district fans will take a peek at George Miller and his undefeated Reliance Life nine.

At Library grounds, the entire executive personnel of the Pittsburgh Coal Company will be on hand when the Coal nine meets the Rieck-McJunkin team in the Commercial and Industrial loop. The Milk boys are some pumpkins at putting on opening nights themselves. With a band and other frills, Manager Munson is going to give the natives out Library way something to cheer over.

RIECKS SHOW CLASS

Riecks are going great this season, and Manager Bill Stuhlfire feels that the C. & I. trophy will be decorating Supt. Goldberg's sideboard.

In the City League, the fans will watch Homewood and Dormont, two old rivals. Steele worked a nice game for the East Enders his last time out, so it is quite certain that Eddie Quigley will face Dormont. Carroll worked Monday, so that George McFarland will probably work against the Bollmen, unless Bill Doak gets the assignment.

In the Steel City League the leading DePasquale club will be at Marshall Field opposing the Brodericks. Mike Jawarski will be on the mound for the Strip outfit. This boy pitched a one-hit game against the East End Cardinals, which is quite a feat, considering the Cardinals are a heavy-hitting club.

CARDS MEET SAINTS

The other game in the loop finds the Cardinals meeting the St. Elizabeth club at Homewood.

Reports in the district have it that the famous W. O. W. club is back on the diamond again. The club finally got started after the fans around the Rox insisted upon its being operated again. The lineup will be intact. The season will be opened next Sunday with the North Side Buicks.

SHUTOUT WINS FEATURE TILTS

A couple right notable hurling tricks were turned in by district sandlot pitchers in last evening's contests. In one, Roscoe, pitching for Book Shoe, blanked the North Side Civics, 9 to 0, setting down the North Siders with five scattered hits. Toby Uansa, former Pitt football star, slammed out a home run to help the cause along.

In a second City League tussle, Homewood continued its fast pace by downing the North Side Buicks, 6 to 2, securing revenge for the setback suffered in the opening game of the season at the hands of the Dunskymen.

LIFERS VICTORS

Spencer, pitching for Reliance Life in the Commercial and Industrial League, blanked Joseph Hornes, 7 to 0. He fanned six batters in the seven-inning game.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, Edgewood nosed out Verona, 3 to 2; Fintex defeated Whitaker, 5 to 3, and Immaculate Heart upset Iroquois, 7 to 3.

Swissvale defeated Linwood, 4 to 2, and Turtle Creek won over St. Joachims, 6 to 5, in West Penn League tussles. Grandview blanked the Booths, 8 to 0, in the McKeesport League.

LINEYS DOWN PATHFINDERS

The Lineys won a close game from the Pathfinders, 2 to 1, in the North-South circuit; St. Phillips won another in the Crafton-Ingram Church League, defeating Ingram, 1-0, and North Pole took Fineview, 8 to 5, in the North Side Twilight loop.

Among the independents, Duquesne Steel trimmed Boston Indies, 9-2; West View defeated the Smilers, 6-5; Stowe won over Neville, 3-1; Lloyd Cardinals defeated the Sterlings, 6-1; Ingomar walloped Coraopolis, 16-3, and Castle Shannon scored a shutout over Hill Top, 7-0.

Wilkinsburg Wins Over Schenley

Wilkinsburg High School's tennis team repeated its early season victory over Schenley yesterday afternoon, winning by a score of 5 to 0. The matches were played at Wilkinsburg. The summary:

Singles—Elliott, Wilkinsburg, defeated Moorhead, Schenley, 6-0, 8-6; Burnett, Wilkinsburg, defeated Slocum, Schenley, 6-2, 6-1; Maxwell, Wilkinsburg, defeated McClinskey, Schenley, 6-2, 7-5; Smith, Wilkinsburg, defeated Weston, Schenley, 6-1, 6-3.

Doubles—Burnett and Elliott, Wilkinsburg, defeated Moorhead and McClinskey, Schenley, 6-1, 7-5.

Barrow Recovering After Operation

PLAYWRIGHTS HERE SEE THEIR WORKS GIVEN IN LITTLE THEATER

THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS WIN APPROVAL OF AUDIENCE

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

An evening of one-act plays, all by Pittsburgh authors, gave agreeable and novel entertainment to a deeply interested audience in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Theater of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement last night. The players, members of the dramatic organization of the settlement, acquitted themselves well, giving an impression of being deeply in earnest in their work and at the same time giving evidence of having been well drilled.

The offerings were "The Angel of the Lord," by George Seibel, drama editor of the Sun-Telegraph; "The Waiting Room," by George M. P. Baird, and "The Pleasure Hunt," by Robert E. Wood. Mr. Baird's serious little phantasy is a pure allegory. Mr. Seibel's play is partially allegoric and Mr. Wood's is a modern comedy satire, which afforded a complete contrast to the earlier gestures of symbolism. The authors were present.

LESSON FOR CAPITAL

"The Angel of the Lord" presents the idea of ruthless industrialism reaping the ripened grain of the seeds it has sown when disease from the slums, by-product of low pay for workers, lays its hand on the daughter of a hard captain of industry. To him the lesson of his conduct is directed by a symbolic character who accompanies the doctor to the stricken home. It affords opportunity for tense dramatic interpretation and the players did well in expressing it.

"The Waiting Room" is a depiction of life, showing the high and the low as passengers in the waiting room of the world waiting for their trains to be called to take them to unknown destinations. None knows the time of departure and are apprised only when the gatekeeper swings open the bars and calls for this or that one. It has a satirical touch when a sot and a rich hypocrite are both called for the same train.

BITER IS BITTEN

Mr. Wood's comedy is a new illustration of how the biter is bitten. A divorce lawyer plans a "party" to make business for himself, having a novel scheme to innocently involve a couple in an escapade that would cause scandal. But it turns on him and makes himself the victim of his plot. It is bitter but amusing.

Several players took part in more than one production. Hyman Bennett and Walter Framer having roles in all three. John L. Taylor, S. Don Moll, Harry Ziff, Meyer Schwartz and Betty Rosenberg played in two. Others were Eva Bernfield, Mollye Grunger, Eleanor Frank, Lillian Meyers, Abe Spector, Beatrice Bloom, Simon Gerson, Stella Smith, Herman Sheikovitz, Anne Phyllis Hanick and Esther Grafman.

Louis Isaacs, director, and A. H. Schullman, assistant director, deserve credit for the excellent manner in which the plays were produced.

Speakeasy

What matter if these dreams be contraband—
What matter if they dull and quickly pass?

Or where they go when they shall quit this place,

If they can still the heartbreak and the pain—
—Don Wahn

Live and Let Live!

Jack Benny, who opens at the Palace next Saturday, tells of the two long idle vaudevillians who were growling to each other about their professional brethren.

"Show business is gettin' worse 'n' worse," said the first as they ankled up Broadway through the Furious Forties, "the minute you think up a new joke or a new sitcheeayshun, what happens? Along comes some rat and he steals it from you. You can't tell a gag at the Palace anymore and expect it to be yours exclusively after the opening matinee!"

Prosperity Note

And Nat Burns, of Burns & Allan, breathlessly asserts that times are getting so good—you now can buy five depression gags for a dollar!

Tragedy

"Are you very busy?" he queried.

"How sad it is?"

"Well," wept Texas, "she dies—and he has to go back to his wife!"

Pepigrams

From Benny Holzman: A successful producer is one who stands for what the public will fall for. . . . Hitch your play to a star—if it has three bad acts. . . . Uneasy sits the playgoer who believes in an 8:15 curtain. . . . Authors are born—that's the trouble! . . . The angel of the show is the fellow

Harmonica Contest Feature for Penn

A harmonica contest between local boys and girls will be an added feature of the performance of Borrah Minevitch, in the Penn, opening Friday. Cash prizes and harmonicas will be awarded the winners, with the additional incentive of an engagement with Minevitch's Harmonica Band, if any of the local mouthorgan experts display sufficient skill. Entries for the contests, to be held throughout the week, will be accepted at Wurlitzer's tonight.

Symphonic Ensemble To Play Tomorrow

The String Symphonic Ensemble of Pittsburgh, of which Oscar E. Del Bianco is conductor, and Gregorie Scalzo concert master, will give a concert in Carnegie Lecture Hall tomorrow evening. Two compositions by the late Fidelis Zitterbart, one of the best-known of Pittsburgh musicians, are on the program—"Norse Child's Requiem," and "Minuet."

RED CROSS FETE ASKS VETERANS

An interesting program is promised to those who attend the dinner of the Red Cross in the Hotel Schenley tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. Among the features will be reminiscences of workers who served the Red Cross during the war years in the Pittsburgh district. These war-time workers have been given a special invitation to attend the dinner, and any who have not yet made arrangements are asked to communicate with their former chairmen or with Red Cross headquarters, 402 Chamber of Commerce Building.

This date, which marks the fiftieth anniversary of the American Red Cross, will be celebrated throughout the country by similar dinners, among them a dinner in Washington, at which Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will serve as toastmaster and President Hoover will be principal speaker. The program of the Washington banquet, broadcast on a national radio hookup, will be received in Pittsburgh at the time of the local dinner, and those attending will listen in as the Chief Executive of the nation reviews the history and achievement of the Red Cross.

COUNTRY SEEN ENTERING ON REVIVAL

Gradual Mounting in 1931 Of Industrial Production, Prophesied by Economist

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A Symptom of the approaching end of a liquidating period is the recurrent popular notion that there is no way out of the depression.

David Friday, economist and investment trust manager, runs in the face of the prevailing pessimism with the pronunciamento that the country has entered the first stage of the business revival.

Mr. Rukeyser

Writing in the organ of the National Credit Men's Association, Dr. Friday, essaying prophecy, points out:

"With reduced retail prices and depleted stocks, production will mount gradually throughout 1931. By December of this year the volume of industrial output should be 25 per cent larger, at least, than it was in December, 1930. According to the Federal Reserve index of physical output, productive activity had fallen from an average of 124 during the six months from April to September, 1929, to 82 in December, 1930. A rise of one-fourth from that point would bring it to 103 at the close of this year.

"That would still be far from boom activity; in fact, it would be a full 10 per cent below normal. But it would make a great difference in the general psychological state of the community. The mere fact that employment is picking up once more will make people more ready to buy goods, and will accelerate the recovery when once it is started."

RISING MARKET

"It will remove the doubts of investors, too, as to the soundness of corporations and as to dividends on their stocks. The result of this will be rising security prices in both the bond market and the stock market. Since everyone feels himself better off when securities are rising than when they are falling, this situation will further stimulate consumer buying, especially in durable luxury goods."

Able analyst and student of the annals of American business, Dr. Friday, impressed with the great resources of the country, constitutionally leans toward an optimistic interpretation of facts.

Grant's Expansion Policy Continues

The steady expansion of the W. T. Grant Company, which has brought it from one store to nearly 400 in the 25 years of its life, is continuing this year despite the general business slump. The ability of the Grant company to maintain its sales volume in existing stores, which sold nearly 20 per cent more items this year than last, has enabled its executives to continue an expansion policy.

The growth of the company has been almost entirely from earnings, which have been plowed back into the company, in the form of investment in new branches. The expansion program has been general and has touched practically all of the states east of the Rocky Mountains.

Pacific Coast Oil Stocks Decrease

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Total stocks of oil on hand in the Pacific Coast territory at the end of April amounted to 177,152,265 barrels, against 177,611,522 in the previous month and 178,939,838 barrels in February, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Crude oil output in California in April amounted to 15,803,541 barrels or 526,785 daily, against 16,364,842 barrels or 527,898 daily.

Atlantic Pipe Line Gets State Charter

HARRISBURG, May 20.—The State Department has granted a charter to Keystone Pipe Line Company, of Philadelphia, Atlantic Refining Company subsidiary, incorporated for the purpose of transportating petroleum products from Point Breeze, near Philadelphia, across Pennsylvania. The pipe line would extend to the New York and Ohio state lines via Allentown, Reading, Scranton and Lancaster, Lebanon, Harrisburg and Carlisle.

Final Valuation on Bessemer-Lake Erie

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has placed a so-called final value of $10,233,000 on the owned and used common carrier properties of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad and $28,138,986 on property used but not owned, as of June 30, 1916. The road is owned by the United States Steel Corporation.

STOCK MARKET DROPS AFTER ADVANCE

Rally in Morning Centers In Rails as Pressure Abates; Steel Loses Gain

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP.)—A morning rally in the stock market, centering in the rails, petered out after mid-day today, as it did yesterday.

The severe pressure against the rails, which Wall street had been inclined to attribute to foreign sources, has abated, but bears still have no difficulty in uncovering isolated weak spots in various sections of the list. Furthermore, the midweek business statistics were on the whole as unfavorable as advance estimates had indicated.

After pushing up 2 points, United States Steel more than lost its rise. The list showed marked buoyance in the first few hours, temporary gains of 2 to 4 points appearing in the rails.

Liquidation of the motor shares seemed to be partly in response to the weekly steel trade reviews, which pointed to tangible evidence that the spring peak in automobile output is being reached. Iron Age said there had been a slackening in steel requirements of motor producers, and their plans were uncertain. It said steel production had contracted from 47 to 45 per cent of capacity, while Steel estimated it at 44 per cent. This is the most pronounced slackening in steel output since April.

Electric Power output and readings of revenue freight, as reported for the latest weeks, were also unfavorable. Electric Power output was a little higher than the previous week, but was off 3½ per cent from the like week of last year, the poorest comparison in recent weeks. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended May 9, showed a decline of 27,842 from the previous week, although an upturn is usually experienced in that period. A smaller movement of coal and miscellaneous freight accounted for most of the slump.

The weekly petroleum statistics, on the other hand, were distinctly encouraging. The daily average output of crude oil last week showed a drop of 41,900 barrels from the proceeding week, and the wide contraction of 181,100 from the corresponding week of last year. There was also a moderate reduction in gasoline stocks in storage.

Call money again renewed at 1½ per cent, but was abundantly available in the outside market at 1. Funds continued to flow into high grade bonds, which is said to be the chief objective of the cheap money policy.

A. P. I. Notes Drop In Oil Production

NEW YORK, May 20.—Domestic crude oil output in the week ended May 16 averaged 2,426,800 barrels daily. A decline of 41,900 barrels from the preceding week, and comparing with 2,607,900 barrels in the like week of 1930, The American Petroleum Institute reports.

Gasoline stocks declined 147,000 barrels during the week to 45,663,000 barrels.

Grigsby-Grunow Steps Up Output

CHICAGO, May 20.—Production of refrigerators by the Grigsby-Grunow Company was stepped up from 750 to 1,000 units daily today and Don M. Compton, vice president and general manager, said the output probably would be increased to 1,500 daily June 1. Compton said a new motor radio set would be placed in production this week.

Indiana Standard Cuts Gasoline Price

CHICAGO, May 20.—Standard Oil Company of Indiana has reduced the price on third-grade gasoline ¼ cents a gallon to 8 cents, exclusive of 3 cents tax, to meet a cut instituted by Sinclair earlier this month. Tank wagon price on this grade also was reduced 1 cent, bringing the price to 8 cents.

200-Mile Pipe Line Inquiry in Market

Memphis Natural Gas Company is in the market for 200 miles of 8 to 10-inch pipe, calling for 16,000 tons of steel. Bids on the Hetch Hetchy Pipe Line, San Francisco, a project involving 35,000 tons of plates, will be opened May 20, according to Iron Age.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 20.—In the absence of reports on any actual damage by frosts, grain prices averaged lower early today. Word of further moisture furnishing drought relief in Canada tended also to give bears an advantage. Opening at ⅜c off to ⅛c up, wheat afterward underwent setbacks. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c lower and subsequently declined all around.

Columbia Gas Hurt by Trade Depression

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE BUSINESS DEPRESSION and the fact that a large share of new development work is still uncompleted have prevented Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation from showing the effects of vast capital improvements in its earnings.

The consolidated report for the first quarter of 1931 showed net income of $8,940,011 after deducting all charges including depreciation, depletion, taxes, interest and preferred dividends of subsidiaries. This was equivalent to 64 cents a share on 11,684,220 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividend for the period. In the corresponding three months of 1930 net was $10,591,961, or 78 cents a share.

Columbia is engaged in the most ambitious program of expansion ever undertaken by any public utility. For the past two years in particular the organization has been pushing its natural gas producing, distributing and marketing facilities into several of the most important sections of the eastern half of the United States. When this construction work is completed, Columbia will have the largest natural gas system in the world.

Serving Eastern Cities

TAPPING THE MAJOR natural gas fields of the East and areas as far west as Texas and Oklahoma, Columbia is building a series of pipe lines which eventually will add to its supplies for serving its older territory in the Middle West and in addition it is steadily expanding the area served to include the principal cities on the eastern seaboard.

In carrying out this program a large number of strategically located gas companies have been acquired and favorable contracts have been made with other companies for distribution. Naturally, the task of bringing the operations of all these units, scattered over such a wide area, into co-ordination will take a long period time. The construction of the major pipe lines is only a part of the necessary work to be done.

Development Slow

A SUPPLY OF GAS does not offer any serious problem to Columbia. It has access to an abundance of proven areas. Its real problem is one of sales. New business is being obtained by the direct sale of gas to large industrial organizations, by direct sale to gas companies engaged in local distribution, by the construction of entirely new distributing systems in communities not served by gas and by the purchase of distributing systems.

The business depression has seriously reduced industrial demand for gas. It has also tended to retard progress in getting companies now burning coal to change to gas. It has reduced the amount of gas which other utilities will buy from the Columbia system. It has made the development of the use of gas in new communities much slower than would be the case under more normal conditions.

Future Return Large

ALL THESE FACTORS have conspired to prevent Columbia from showing results from the tremendous amounts of money poured into new properties. Expenses have been increasing while the gains in sales will be far in the future. When Columbia will have completed the major share of its development work and better business conditions will have permitted more intensive development of new markets, it seems logical to expect that Columbia will show a surprisingly rapid increase in earnings. In judging the company as an investment, more weight should be given to future prospects than to current results.

Net income for the 12 months ended March 31, 1931, was $24,498,798 or $1.59 a share on the common stock. This compared with $30,756,142 or $2.13 a share in the preceding 12 months. Columbia Gas common is on a $2 annual dividend basis.

The Retort Terrible

Legend

"Dear Winchell," writes J. A. Backett, of Camden, N. J., "I see where you state that George McManus character 'Jiggs' resembles him. Have you ever heard the story of McManus when he was courting? It appears that he was going with a girl whose people were as poor as he was at the time. Someone in Ireland died and left them a mess of money. The newly acquired money went to their alleged heads, and the mother made her daughter give McManus the air. The old man, though, still went around with his low-brow friends.

"To get even, Mr. McManus is said to have started cartooning, and portrayed these people in his well-known comic strip. I understand that the people he mimic'd sued him, and got only a headache."

O, Mr. Wilstach

Suggested for the simile dictionary: Struthers Burt: Naked as a star . . . The N. Y. Times: Anonymous as newspaper editorials . . . David Murray: Rare as bald-headed gigolos . . . Anon's: A woman is like a goldfish—she thrives on neglect, and. Human as heartache.

In Fewer Words

Added to our Crips Cracks from Caustic Critics is Charles Brackett's, who once summed up the merit of a play like this:

And—

When "William Tell" was presented in New York several years ago Alison Smith, then reviewing shows for the World, said in part:

Oop!

And how about the time when Bide Dudley, dramatic editor of the World-Telegram, wrote a show called "O. Henry!"

"Oh, Bide!"

Merchant of Venus

Nils T. Granlund has perhaps the greatest address book on Broadway, if not in the world. "N. T. G." as he is better known, can supply any producer with the shapeliest, the prettiest and the blondest persons. It is a legend that the Messrs. Ziegfeld, Carroll, White, Shubert, etc., have the better-lookers. As a matter of fact they invariably come to N. T. G. for their live stock.

Only the other day Mr. Ziegfeld recruited a dozen of them from the Granlund floor show at the Hollywood Restaurant, and Mr. Carroll and Mr. White are dickereing for others from the same menagerie.

Flipcrack

Julius Tannen reports that Earl Carroll is putting on an intimate review—it can be put on in a patrol wagon.

Pellissier, directors of the Golden State Milk Products Company of California, and a group of stockholders have addressed an open letter to all the stockholders of the company urging them not to deposit their proxies in favor of a merger of the Golden State Company, Ltd., the successor of the milk company, with the National Dairy Products Corporation.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

Is becoming so noticeable in our field that we find it necessary to employ five more men to handle this encouraging increase. As nearly as we can estimate now, our production during the remaining months of 1931 will net our men a total of $28,000 in pay checks. We now have 15 men; these with the five we are about to hire will share this $28,000. If you are only of average ability your portion should you qualify for one of these positions, will be in the neighborhood of $50 per week.

Men experienced in this work are NEVER unemployed. Consequently, we are obliged to accept men without experience and train them thoroughly. Thus we are willing to do if you can convince us of your reliability and soundness of character. A neat appearance is also desirable.

For investigation and interview, apply at 963 Liberty Ave., before 9:30 a. m. Thursday. Ask for Mr. Nicholson.

GOOD salesmen are extremely hard to find. Irrespective of compensation. New local office of national organization has most unusual openings for five salesmen above average type and accustomed to minimum earnings of $5,000. No others need apply. Essential requisites: Intelligence, ambition, personality, backbone. We have no competition and our success is spectacular. For appointments—Mr. Serpa, Atlantic 8711.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Used Cars

Bank Teller Is Rewarded For Heroic Deed

It was an advance model, Rexley.

One would have said that the young man had just sighted the car for the first time and that it was a curiosity.

Not so. Harvey Smith had looked over this car every noon for two weeks, or since the car had been set out on the platform in front of the City Motor Mart.

Mr. Spurgis, inside the display room, smiled indulgently as he saw Harvey studying the car, but he made no move to go out and try and make a sale.

He knew Harvey. He knew that Harvey could not afford $3,500 for a car. He doubted if Harvey could afford more than $350 for a used car.

Mr. Lang, owner of the establishment, came along just then.

"If wishes were automobiles," Spurgis said, "Harvey Smith out there would have that car."

Mr. Lang smiled and nodded.

"I wish he had the money," he said, "it seems as though we ought to sell a lot of that model."

"Young Erskine is coming over to talk about it today. He tells me his father has promised him a good car."

Gets Wife's Opinion

His home was one of a long row of neat but cheap little bungalows. It would be all paid for in one more month. As he turned in at the side path he could visualize that Rexley fitting snugly into his unused little garage.

But he knew better—he was going to get a used car and he was going to be very proud of it. He and Etta would have lots of fun in it—he had no reason to covet a car like the Rexley, he should be constantly thankful that he had a steady position and a home as good as paid for.

"Gee, Etta," he said as he sat down to the luncheon, "that Rexley car is a wow!"

Etta laughed.

"I had a hunch you were hanging 'round the Motor Mart dreaming over that car."

"No harm in it, is there, dear?"

"Well I wanted you and I was ambitious enough to get you, and now I want to get nice things for you—"

Etta patted him as she passed with the coffee percolator.

"My goodness, Harvey, we haven't been married two years and already we own our own home—I guess that's as much as any poor girl could hope for."

"Oh, come, dear, forget it. I'll be just as happy in a nice little used car."

"I could get that used car we looked at, tonight if you think best, Etta," he said as he started to go back to his job.

Automobile Missing

"No, we can wait. If we got the car and made the last payment on the house we wouldn't have any nest-egg at all and besides, it wouldn't help any to have them know at the bank that you had drawn out every penny. They know now that you can't add much because you are paying for the house—no, we'll wait."

Suddenly he stopped short.

Someone had bought the car!

Then he smiled rather foolishly. This was so silly of him—the car had been put out there to sell. He couldn't afford even the six tires on the car—why get sore because someone else could afford it?

"Who bought the Rexley?" Harvey asked.

"Young Erskine's gonna, I guess. He's out on trial spin in it now—he's a lucky stiff, his old man would buy him the moon if he mentioned that he wanted it—how about that second hand job you were lookin' at?"

"Next month. If that's gone there'll be another one in."

The next day Harvey was a trifle late getting away for his luncheon and hurried past the shining Rexley with just a fleeting glance, which caused young Unger to call out, "Got in a beaut of a repossessed car for you, Mr. Smith."

Starts for Bank

"Fine," said Harvey, "did Young Erskine buy the Rexley?"

He started back before he really had to because he wanted to get his work done a bit earlier if possible and set out some flowering shrubs that had just come by parcel post.

It was unusually hot weather for spring. Someone was letting down a store window awning. It came down with a peculiar thud and squeak.

There was a car in front of the bank. A man stuck his head out when the awning came down and looked up and down the street. Some children were skipping rope, a woman was talking out front of a fruit store with the merchant. Two men were sauntering down the street.

It was all as quiet as humorists would have us believe hick towns were, but this was no hick town, it was a very flourishing little suburb of a big city.

There came a sharp report.

Harvey turned around, he thought it was a back-fire.

Then there was another sharp report. It came from the direction of the bank.

Three men ran out. Two of them carried large black Gladstone valises. They leaped into the car.

One of the men had an automatic in his hand. He was the last to jump in the car which started at once, coming along the street toward Harvey.

It was a stick-up—a hold-up—all that payroll money was probably in those bags. Perhaps some of his fellow workers in the bank had been shot!

The bank might fail! He might lose his job!

There was the Rexley, on the platform, headed in the right direction. There would be gas in it as they had given Erskine a trial spin in it.

From inside the City Motor Mart came loud shouts as Harvey leaped into the car, started it, let it roll off the two-inch high platform and put on speed.

Boy! What pep there was in this Rexley!

Robbers Captured

Another shot was fired.

A motorcycle cop began to suspect what was up and he gave chase, but something went wrong with his motorcycle so he waved to Harvey to slow up. He hopped aboard and the chase was on. This time there was more shooting, but the motorcycle cop was doing it. Harvey crowded the other car to the ditch, over it went, he just saved himself from going over.

Two men were pinned down, two started to run, the cop dropped one, the other got away.

The bank robbers' car was smashed, so Harvey, at the Rexley wheel, brought back the stolen money and the cop, after an ambulance had picked up the three crooks, two terribly injured in the crash and the third by the cop's bullet.

President Erskine, of the bank, made a deal—now it was a used car, he bought it himself.

"I'll say I am—Erskine made me a present of it—of course, it's a used car—"

FIVE AND TEN -:- By Fannie Hurst

tents of his open bag scattered about the room, and the plain surface of his lean, pale face plastered with a look of panic that was positively grotesque as his father leaned in at the door.

The flash of Jenny's sable coat, as she sped down the hall, had not been lost upon him, and now there came to him rather belatedly the consciousness that he had been hearing the dim patter of her and Avery's voices all the way along the corridor.

The thrill that he invariably experienced over this narrow young person he called son, shot through him before his first resentment had time to leap out.

Good youngster! A bit too thin. Needed filling out. A bothered look to him. What made him gape like a fish that had just been landed, hook and all? The scent and the echo of Jenny still on the air. Conniving again, filling Rarick with a roiling sense of outsider in his own home. Heads together, the two of them had been shutting him out. Some scrape had brought him home, no doubt.

"Well, father, here I am."

Hang it! Why had he added that? It threw the boy still further off his ease.

"I guess it is sort of a surprise to me, too, father. Hadn't particularly planned on coming, until I found myself driving down."

"I see," said his father, in the polite tones of not seeing at all.

"Will you sit down, father?"

The boy did have oyster-shells under his eyes. Ill-health? Dissipations? Well? What?

Avery Is Confused

"You see, father, here's the situation," began the son of Rarick.

They were going to get on! Sometimes a man and his boy just naturally came to a place where they began to get on Avery was old enough now to understand . . .

"Yes son." Patience. Patience. Shouldn't expect a lad to come directly to the point like a business man. What the dickens was the trouble with him?

"Yes, son?"

"The situation is this, father." What in the name of heaven was the situation? Sitting there, facing his father, frantic for point of contact, now-or-never blazing in his bright blue eyes, words seemed to log-jam back in Avery's throat.

You didn't sit opposite one of the titan business men of the country—of the world, for that matter—and tell him that your soul was hurting you. You didn't sit opposite the director of a string of banks, a merchandise king of two continents, the biggest individual dispenser of pins, ice cream pies and ink-erasers in the world, and tell him of the strange torments, the nervous panic, the despairs, the ecstasies, the strange stirrings of the desire to love and be loved, or the yearnings for some power to express the wonder and the pain of those first faint stirrings.

You didn't sit opposite a small, literal man called your father, whose ideals were as well hung as his paintings, and tell him that the world was a manhole into which you felt yourself falling.

Thinks He Understands

What in God's name was the situation? One did not dare to say to one's father, "Life is too much for me, Dad." One did not quite dare bring to the point of discussion the curiously recurrent thoughts of the lips of women that were flashing through his torment . . . the desire to create . . . the desire to live beautifully . . . the need to be alone to work it all out. The confusion . . . somewhere there was a father to understand . . . not this father.

And yet—strange little man—he liked his organ with the horrible stained-glass operas. The fires in the stone of the earth had witchery for him. The salty wisdom and humor of the old fossil he kept up in the yellow suite tickled and delighted him.

"Go ahead, son."

"As I had been saying to mother, just before you came in, or rather, it's been running through my mind . . ."

"Well, I suppose if there is something you want, son, you're beginning to be of an age now where you've got to depend on your own good judgments."

"That's mighty fine of you to say, Father."

"I sometimes have my own ideas about these things, Avery. Some day, when you don't have to get back to college we'll take time off and——"

"But, Father——"

"—talk some of these things out. We haven't ever had much to say to each other about you and your relationship to this big world you are preparing to grapple with. It's a bigger and more complex world than falls to the lot of most youths. I'd like to talk to you along those lines——"

"But, father, that's not what I want to ta——"

"It's all right, son; I understand this may be a bit premature. No hurry. I think I know what's brought you down from college today. Want you to start back this afternoon."

"But, father——"

Check for Speedboat

"Don't like sloppy attendance. Don't like sloppy anything. Wait a minute. Hold your horses. You're going back with what you came down for. I don't like speedboats, as a general rule. Don't like speed-devices in general, when they've no other purpose than saving time that you don't know what to do with after it's saved. Nerve-racking. Extravagant. Dumb. But I figure you're getting to an age when your own judgments should count. I'm glad to give in. Is that all right with you, son?" said Rarick, and took out his checkbook.

They sat there, knee to knee, in their straight chairs, their faces seemed to swim together as twilight came to blur them. Rarick, a sudden sliding blur to his son; Avery, a sliding blur to his father.

"You guess?"

"I mean—it's all right with me, father — if it is with you—"

Their Responsibility

In Authorizing Sale of Fireworks Councilmen Make Themselves Accountable for Injuries.

The Public Safety Committee of Council has recommended that the sale of fireworks be permitted to go on. It has rejected Councilman Robert Garland's bill prohibiting the sale of the dangerous Fourth of July playthings and given its approval to another measure regulating the traffic.

That means that the majority of Council have yielded to the demands of the fireworks dealers and have turned a deaf ear to the entreaties of the Congress of Women's Clubs, the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Council of Jewish Women, the Allegheny County League of Women Voters and the other civic and trade organizations which asked passage of the Garland measure.

Council has deliberately chosen to ignore the solemn lesson taught by the deaths and injuries inflicted by fireworks in Pittsburgh year after year. In respect to public safety on Independence Day it has chosen to keep Pittsburgh in the ranks of the most backward cities.

Voting Machine Warning

Beamish's Admonition Was Invited by Manufacturers' Secretiveness and Unfulfilled Promises.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Beamish used stern language in his warning to the Poole Engineering Company not to fail to deliver voting machines in Allegheny County for demonstration purposes by June 8.

The company has itself to blame for the admonition. The secretiveness which it has maintained in regard to the work on the machines, the brusque refusal to answer inquiries as to what progress had been made, have not tended to inspire confidence.

It is a fact, too, that while there is no reason to question the company's ability to deliver machines on August 18, the date stipulated in the formal contract, it has not fulfilled informal promises to ship samples to Pittsburgh at a much earlier date. For instance, on March 24, when the contract was let, C. N. Davidson, vice president of the company, promised that 200 machines would be ready on May 16.

Allegheny County has shown the Poole Company a great deal of consideration, and it is not unfitting that the company should be reminded of its obligations.

They Can Be Useful

School Visitors' Work Is Not Unimportant, Even Though Their Function Is Only Advisory.

It is disturbing to learn that the boards of school visitors of six wards have not organized this year, as required by law, and that the boards in three wards have never functioned. This looks very much like inexcusable neglect of duty, and certainly shows a deplorable lack of interest in the schools.

Because of the inefficiency of the old system the Legislature in 1911 adopted a school code vesting the entire management of the public schools of Pittsburgh in a Board of Public Education composed of 15 members appointed by the judges of Common Pleas Court. To give the people a more direct voice in school matters, however, the Legislature also provided for boards of school visitors, one for each ward, composed of seven members, elected by the people for a term of four years.

The boards of visitors serve only in an advisory capacity, which is probably the explanation for the indifference of the boards in the six wards.

They can be useful in an advisory capacity, as has been proved by the boards that have attended to their duty, and also by the Parent-Teachers Association. The visitors' services are needed.

Protecting the Water

Water consumers in the Pittsburgh district will be glad to learn of steps that have been taken to protect the rivers from the discharge of vile and poisonous chemicals from the by-product coke ovens.

The State Sanitary Water Board announces it has secured a pledge of co-operation from the Davison Coke and Iron Company, which operates on Neville Island, and that with its signature the entire coke industry of Pennsylvania is covered by agreements to aid in preserving the purity of the streams.

The people in this part of the state have experienced more than once the unpleasantness that results from discharge of poisonous materials from the coking plants into the rivers.

Under the agreements now in force the companies pledge themselves to keep phenol and other dangerous waste materials out of the streams. In case of accidental spills the operators are to notify the Department of Health immediately.

Companies properly appreciative of their duty will see that there are no accidental spills.

Skywriting's Better, Sam

By Nelson Harding

When outlining defensive plans
Don't keep your eyes upon the ground,
Or write in that old-fashioned way,
But straighten up and look around.

Just raise your eyes and you must see
That modern writing overhead;
Don't make your plans upon the ground,
But draw them in the air instead.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Let's Get Married"

One reason for the grand rush to Reno is that so many of the marriage bureaus and marrying parsons are running kindergartens these days.

* * *

Never before, in the history of the world, not even back in the Stone Age, were there so many infantile elopements, juvenile romances and bassinet marriages as there are today!

Children, not yet out of school, are leaping to the altar, everywhere, and coming back home for daddy and mother to support them. It makes you shiver!

* * *

* * *

As soon as a baby girls cuts her front teeth, she wants a bite of the forbidden apple. And, by the time she is tall enough to reach the ink-bottle, she is writing her memoirs—on asbestos paper.

* * *

The first thing she says is "Gimme!"—the second is Lemme!" —and the third is "Let's GET MARRIED!"

* * *

At 17 she is standing with unreluctant feet, where wedlock and alimony meet. At 18, she is a sophisticated woman; at 20, she is getting world-weary, and at 25, she is beginning to feel positively senile!

* * *

Most of these youthful marriages don't last until the honeymoon train reaches Niagara Falls, much less until the installment collector gets around.

* * *

But, what can you EXPECT of a marriage based on unripened emotions and half-baked minds, except a bad case of romantic indigestion? Little green hearts cannot know what love is!

* * *

These youthful marriages are not cute or clever or amusing. They are the most shocking spectacle of a foolish and erotic age. The law is very careful and meticulous about whom it lets OUT of marriage. You have to prove that you are WORTHY of a divorce! But any babe or moron can enter the Holy Bonds just by telling a little white fib!

The tragedy of the so-called "Younger Generation" is that it is never YOUNG. It does not take time to be young—it is so afraid it will MISS something!

NEGLECTED JOHN DALTON

By Archibald Henderson

In this day of many inventions and rapidly multiplying discoveries, little is heard of John Dalton. Yet he stands out as an important figure in the history of science, since he did what needed to be done, at a particular time, to give science a new impetus. The chemical atom is indissolubly associated with his name and the pioneering work which he successfully carried out.

John Dalton was born near Cockermouth, in Cumberland, England, in the year 1766. Although he was by no means brilliant at school, he was resolute and self-reliant. He cared nothing for predigested knowledge, and insisted upon working things out for himself rather than hearing them from others. He learned enough to convince himself that he knew how to impart knowledgs to others; and at an early age opened a school for boys and girls! He secured a number of pupils, ranging from infants to youths of 17, and conducted his school for two years.

After giving up the school, he farmed for a while, all the time studying privately. After a time he was appointed assistant in a Quaker school, in which his brother was employed. Several years later, the school fell to John and his brother who carried it on for a time with success. He continued to study diligently, especially devoting himself to mathematics, in which he acquired considerable proficiency. At the age of 27 he received the appointment of tutor of mathematics and natural philosophy in New College, Manchester.

At the age of 30, Dalton began to take a great interest in chemistry. So attached to the subject did he become that, after six years, he gave up his post at the college in order to devote himself more completely to the study of chemistry.

It was not long before Dalton, who had a private laboratory, began to make a name for himself as a chemist. When he put forward his theory of chemical atoms, his fame quickly spread abroad. All the while, he continued to live very simply, earning his livelihood by tutoring. It was not until he was 87 years of age that the government granted him a pension in recognition of his notable work.

As a signal honor, he was invited to lecture in the Royal Institution in London, after he had become widely famous. At this time Humphry Davy, afterwards so distinguished, was an assistant in the institution. At home Dalton spent practically the entire day in the laboratory, and usually worked there until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Dalton was a prolific writer, and read more than 100 papers before the Literary and Philosophical Society of Manchester, of which he was president for many years. So high was the esteem in which Dalton was held as scientist and man that 40,000 people visited the darkened Town Hall where his remains were placed prior to his funeral.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm about to take my place with the dodo as a fossilized old fuss and I don't give a hoot. Hitherto I've been plenty eager to be up-to-date or even a couple of jumps ahead of the current notions. But at last I renege. This latest fad is too yippity-yip for even my let's-go nature. Here's where Elsie joins the View-With-Alarm Club.

"Aw, but it's only innocent fun!" you may say.

Yes? Well, if public pajama parties for high school youngsters is innocent fun then I'm a sip of cyanide.

Now, mind you, I've nothing against pajamas, per se. I sleep in them, work in them, loaf in them. And I've grown accustomed to seeing cute little tricks scampering to the corner grocery in rose pink panties. For, dresses being what they are, pajamas can't be much more so. So when I heard that the Pajama Party rage had hit our town, and I saw a dozen of our prettiest girls starting off the other night, I wasn't particularly startled. To be sure, Nice Girls didn't go to public dances when I was eighteen, . . . specially when they were dressed like a bunch of Bed Time Stories. But just because my youth was practically ruined by having to wear five petticoats, is that any reason why a pretty girl shouldn't enjoy her shape on a warm Spring evening? None at all. Can't you be broad minded? You know you're just eaten up with envy. Which, of course, I was. So away went the kids. And back I went to work, thinking what a lot I'd missed in life.

"Long about midnight I finished the work, thought I'd go out, take a turn and drop in at the Counter for a cup of coffee. I dropped. I'm still dropping!

The kids were there before me. Pajamas all over the place. Giggly girls—I'd been prepared for them. But what I hadn't been prepared for was the big, gawky boys. Now a funny little boy in his foolish little jams is one of the most touching sights I know. But a great, big, hulking, farm-size, male school boy flopping around in a few, thin yards of sky-blue, wrinkled nighty is altogether too touching a sight to let loose on a public restaurant at midnight. Particularly when he and his variously tangled girl friends are all generously lickered up.

And right here, a lot of indignant mammas and outraged prohibitionists are going to say it wasn't so. Very well, bamboozle yourselves if you wish, ladies—but I'm telling you it WAS so. And these were not "horrid boys and girls" in some "tough bootleg joint." These were nice boys and girls from nice families, in a nice town, and the Counter is an eminently respectable place, without a drop of liquor on the premises.

These youngsters were there with the full consent of their parents. Their doting mammas had been sewing on those pajamas for a week. They thought Little Sister looked perfectly adorable in her tangerine crepe de chine, and that Big Brother was killing in his orchid stripes. They'd helped them dress, and had then gone with them to the dance hall and visited happily through the opening dances. Then, along about 11, they began to nod and yawn, and had gone comfortably home to bed, having warned "the children to be back early."

And what do you expect? Are 18-year-old boys and girls, itty-bitty-tootsy-wootsies, who'll be content with a rosy romp and a bag of lollipops? Or are they red-blooded, mature young humans, with high blood pressure and a lot of ideas? And if you turn them loose at midnight, garbed in nighties, in close proximity to parked autos and cheap gin—what's the answer? And that's exactly what is being done at public pajama parties all over America this spring.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

The Star

Down the winding road I go,
Following a star;
Lovely, luring is its glow—
Far, oh, very far!

Plodding through the dusk,
Patient, weary, I have gone,
Life a burden, life a task
Heavy hands must bear;
Yet the star is all I ask . . .
Fair, oh, very fair!

So through all the bygone years
Of this life of mine
Though I scanned the sky through tears,
Still my star would shine;
Still I saw its silver gleam;
Still its glamor led Down the winding road, a dream
Beaming just ahead!

Text For Today — I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.—Psalms, xci:2.

Slowly, Surely

HE TRAVELED 101 MILES IN 29 YEARS.

This crab (scientic name: Neptunus pelagicus) was caught in the Red Sea 29 years ago and marked with a disk to identify it.

It has just arrived at Port Said, at the other end of the Suez Canal, having traveled the length of the canal—101 miles—in 29 years, averaging a speed of 22 INCHES an hour.

Prof. Gruevil, of the Paris Zoological Garden, gives you these facts in connection with the studies of sea fish, crustaceans and their movements between the Indian Ocean and the Mediterrancan.

Twenty-nine years seems a long time to wait to find out how rapidly a crab can travel through the Suez Canal. But patience in waiting is an important part of scientific achievement.

The average of us are not much given to concentrated science, except in a general way. The interesting thing about this crab and his long, slow journey is demonstration of the fact that everything is COMPARATIVE.

We used to crawl around the earth's surface slowly, walking on our own feet in the ancient days; then riding on buffaloes, oxen, camels, elephants. Now we travel 100 miles an hour by automobile or 250 miles an hour by airplane, and think ourselves FAST. And we look down on the lowly crab doing his patient, persevering 22 inches an hour.

But what we think of the crab, as we glory in our greater speed, is just what light or the electric current would think of us.

We are proud to go 250 miles an hour. Light goes 186,000 miles per SECOND. This slow old earth turns on its axis at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour and goes around the sun 186,000,000 miles in a year. Divide that by the number of hours in a year and you will find that the speed of the earth makes our fastest flying look slower than a crab traveling.

And in space, near us, there are a thousand million suns, all traveling much faster than this earth.

The moral of all this is: DO THE BEST THAT YOU CAN, CRITICIZING YOURSELF, CRITICIZING NOBODY ELSE, AND GIVING TO EACH CREDIT, BE IT CRAB OR AIRPLANE, IF IT DOES ITS BEST.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 20.—A few steps below the Thirty-fourth street shopping district on Broadway is the store-like office of an enterprising patent attorney. In a glittering electrically lighted window are the material manifestations of inventive dreams from all over the world.

A glaring gilt sign across the window reads: "Patents Developed." Inside are rows upon rows of ponderous records and at a flat topped desk sits the attorney who meets the constant stream of potential geniuses with their practical or impractical what-nots.

Almost every other person has an inventive idea tucked away in the folds of his mind. Indeed few are satisfied with just one. And none is so superlatively optimistic as the person athrill with the notion that he will give the world something new.

Most inventors are improvident. They have built up such roseate dreams of great wealth that the money they have on hand seems like so much chicken feed and they scatter it with the same abandon. The inventor almost invariably thinks in millions. And his life becomes a chaos of disillusionment.

When a man becomes too absorbed in an inventive idea his concentration is often looked upon with suspicion. He is regarded as one "touched." His habits of dress, his manner of living, and often his conversation reveal neglectful sacrifice to a fixed idea.

Henry Ford, thin, cadaverous and hollowed-eyed, was the target for indulgent smiles for years "frightening horses along the road with his fool horseless carriage nonsense." The retiring Wright brothers in their little bicycle repair shop in Dayton, O., met the same indifference.

Chasing the inventive rainbow has brought many to a rocking chair on the side porch of the poor house. But the thin majority who win untold wealth and honors recruit the ranks. New York alone is said to have 150,000 aspiring inventors.

I had dinner recently with young Clyde Beatty, the 25-year-old lion tamer of the Ringling circus, who gave New York the biggest thrill of the year. He mixes 30 lions and tigers—natural jungle enemies—in a small circular cage and with a chair bottom and a cap pistol stands off their lightning charges with a gusto of courage that literally lifts the hair.

Beatty was born and reared in Chillicothe, O., and is still the type of country boy to be seen in front of the drug store. He began as a circus runaway cleaning animal cages and at 20 presented the most astounding thriller ever seen the world over. His mother saw his act but once in his home town and upon this occasion he omitted two of his most ferocious beasts. Even so she was utterly prostrated for two weeks. He is an engagingly friendly lad, the sort with a nervous smile of agreement before knowing what is said. He weighs 145 pounds and has twice been literally torn to ribbons in the arena. He likes the movies but spends most of his time reading in his dressing room and wandering about the circus watching other acts. He drinks a single glass of beer now and then but does not smoke.

Following a visit with Beatty, I was explaining to Lucy Virginia Long how alone in the pit awhirl with snarling and often screaming beasts he turned their murderous attacks into skulking whimpers. She seemed mildly interested but when I had finished naively inquired: "I wonder what a fellow like that has for delirium tremens?"

The waggish H. I. Phillips in commenting on the statement of a movie queen that had she her life to live over again she would avoid the plaudits of the public observes: "The delicatessen dealers had a word for it."

It was Phillips, too, breaking out in a rash of modernism, who suggested changing "Lover's Lane" in Central Park to "Arterial Alley." And Joe Laurie, Jr., doesn't mind having insomnia if he could only get some sleep.
